Haida Legends:

Heroes and Heroines Mary Giraudo Beck, 2003-06-01 Mary Beck's collection of legends from Tlingit and Haida folklore provides an excellent look at not only the mythology but the value and culture of these Southeast Alaska Natives. Jan O Meara Homer News. Over uncounted generations the Tlingits and Haidas of Southeast Alaska developed a spoken literature as robust and distinctive as their unique graphic art style and passed it from the old to the young to ensure the continuity of their culture. Even today when the people gather now under lamplight rather than the flickering glow from the central fire pit the ancient myths and legends are told and retold and they still reinforce the unity of the lineage and clan and the culture. Mary Beck opens this collection of legends by setting the tradition scene. It will be a time of feasting, singing and dancing of honoring lineages and of telling ancestral stories. In this small beautifully produced volume enhanced by the wonderful illustrations by Nancy DeWitt Beck, she tells nine traditional ancient myths and legends from the oral literature that are authentic for one group or another from this region including Fog Woman, Volcano Woman, Bear Mother and The Boy Who Fed Eagles. Bill Hunt Anchorage Daily News.

Nine Visits to the Mythworld Ghandl, 2000-01-01 The nine stories contained in this volume are the finest offerings from one of the last of the traditional Haida storytellers. Ghandl of the Qayahllaanas. Ghandl was born in 1851 in a small Haida island community off the coast of British Columbia. His world was devastated by waves of European diseases which wiped out over ninety percent of the Haidas and robbed him of his sight. He became a skilled listener taking in the myths, legends and everyday stories of his people. Creatively adapting them, the blind storyteller became a master of his craft. In 1900 John Swanton with the help of a translator transcribed a number of Ghandl's narrative poems. Nearly all of the poems in this volume are qayagaang narrative poems set in the Haida mythtime of long ago. One story, The Names of Their Gambling Sticks, is a qayagaang story that juxtaposes mythtime and historical time and is the property of a Haida family. Each poem creatively enacts a myth in a way that illuminates and celebrates the traditional world of the Haidas and reveals Ghandl's own acute sense of the foibles and great potential of all human beings. Meticulously and sensitively translated and annotated by Robert Bringhurst, these stories have finally been given the attention they deserve.

Haida Legends [sic] John Reed Swanton, Tora, 1978

A Story as Sharp as a Knife Robert Bringhurst, 2011-03-15 The Haida world is a misty archipelago a hundred stormy miles off the coasts of British Columbia and Alaska. For a thousand years and more before the Europeans came a great culture flourished in these islands. The masterworks of classical Haida sculpture now enshrined in many of the world's great museums range from exquisite tiny amulets to magnificent huge housepoles. Classical Haida literature is every bit as various and fine. It extends from tiny jewels crafted by master songmakers to elaborate mythic cycles lasting many hours. The linguist and ethnographer John Swanton took dictation from the last great Haida speaking storytellers, poets and historians from the fall of 1900 through the summer of 1901. His Haida hosts and colleagues had been raised in a wholly oral world where the mythic and the personal interpenetrate completely They joined forces with their visitor consciously creating a great treasury of Haida oral literature in written form Poet and linguist Robert Bringhurst has worked for many years with these century old manuscripts which have waited until now for the broad recognition they deserve Legends of the Capilano E.
