Needle's Eye Wieslaw Mysliwski,2025-10-21 A rich polyphonic novel from one of the leading voices of contemporary Polish literature encompassing a half century of history and memory In a Polish village a young man watches an old man trip and fall down a flight of stairs From this singular event arises a cascade of memories regrets and longings the buried sensations of a whole lifetime condensed and released We hear of life during occupation the scarcities of a childhood lived under the sign of war and fragments of a home s sounds and scents the private speech of mothers and fathers the treasures of coffee raisins almonds and plums There are loves unrequited and fulfilled landscapes of winter and spring old jobs and old friends all flowing together Wies aw My liwski s latest novel is a personal epic written on the smallest scale Its narrator a medieval historian in his latter years lives surrounded by images of the past From within this wandering mind My liwski has composed his own ode to lost time a nonlinear chameleonic meditation on a half century of Polish life as it does not appear in the historical record Part autobiography part dreambook Needle s Eye is both a writer s farewell to the Poland of his youth and an extended address like the final lecture prepared by its narrator on the persistence and necessity of memory

The Demon at Horseshoe Lake Paul Middlebrooks,2017-06-09 Heres a little info about my book I have always been a dreamer and it was usually that my imagination was the greatest while working and fishing In my childhood days things that I saw would get my attention so easily And as always they would give me ideas to further my imagination As I carried on through my working years some things in nature and places that I had been had gotten my attention and they brought out ideas And one day it all came together I started seeing these things that I had experienced in life And the idea came to me and the story was created Two little old women and a secret that they kept all to themselves for almost eighty years in a city called Rossville These beings took up shelter on their property and lived under the lake They grew from a small tiny Bug eater that made a small funnel shaped hole in the ground Growing into something so vicious so grotesque so devouring they have the strength to knock a locomotive from its tracks no one is safe in their path as they are man eaters They were so elusive for so many years and so many lives had already been taken It came from a place God only knows

Ageing Identities and Women's Everyday Talk in a Hair Salon Rachel Heinrichsmeier, 2020-01-14 The ageing of the world's populations particularly in Western developed countries is a well documented phenomenon and despite many positive images of later life in the media and public discourse later life is frequently depicted as a time of inevitable physical and cognitive decline. Against this background Heinrichsmeier presents the results of her two year sociolinguistic study examining how a group of older women of different ages negotiated their way through their own and others' expectations of ageing and constructed different kinds of older and other identities for themselves. Through vivid and nuanced analysis of their chat and practices in a small village hair salon Heinrichsmeier reveals these women's subtle and skilful manipulation of stereotypes of ageing and the impact of the evolving talk on their identity constructions. Her study which provides numerous short extracts of talk in both the hair salon and interview along with more detailed case studies highlights the importance of such apparently trivial sites for both studying older people's identity work and as loci for positive identity constructions and well being in later life. This book will be of particular interest to graduate students and scholars working in sociolinguistics discourse analysis conversation analysis and gerontological studies as well as those interested in approaches integrating ethnography and language
