that the digital arts arose out of Silicon Valley's technological revolutions in the 1970s. In fact, in the 1960s a diverse array of artists, musicians, poets, writers, and filmmakers arose.

Media and the Ecological Crisis Richard Maxwell, Jon Raundalen, Nina Lager Vestberg, 2014-10-03. Media and the Ecological Crisis is a collaborative work of interdisciplinary writers engaged in mapping, understanding, and addressing the complex contribution of media to the current ecological crisis. The book is informed by a fusion of scholarly, practitioner, and activist interests to inform, educate, and advocate for real environmentally sound changes in design, policy, industrial, and consumer practices. Aligned with an emerging area of scholarship devoted to identifying and analysing the material, physical links of media technologies, cultural production, and environment, it contributes to the project of greening media studies by raising awareness of media technology's concrete environmental effects.

Solvent form Jared Pappas-Kelley, 2018-11-23. This book is about the destruction of art, both in terms of objects that have been destroyed (lost in fires, floods, or vandalism) and the general concept of art operating through object and form. Through re-examinations of such events as the MOMA warehouse fire in 2004 and the activities of art thief Stéphane Breitwieser, the book proposes an idea of solvent form, hinging on the dual meaning in the words solvent and solvency, whereby art, while attempting to make secure or fixed, simultaneously undoes and destroys through its inception. Ultimately, the book questions what is it that may be perceived in the destruction of art and how we understand it, and further, how it might be linked to a more general failure.

The Global Sixties in Sound and Vision T. Brown, A. Lison, 2014-05-01. Despite the explosion of interest in the global 1960s, the arts in this period, both popular and avant-garde forms, have too often been neglected. This interdisciplinary volume brings together scholars in history, cultural studies, musicology, and other areas to explore the symbiosis of the sonic and the visual in the counterculture of the 1960s.

Null Object Bruce Gilchrist, Gustav Metzger, Jo Jelson, London: Fieldworks, 2012. This book charts a project by London Fieldworks, Bruce Gilchrist, and Jo Jelson, with the participation of internationally celebrated artist Gustav Metzger, to create a sculptural work by linking a computer brain interface with industrial manufacturing technology. Using bespoke software, London Fieldworks produced 3D shape information from EEG readings of Metzger's brainwaves as he attempted to think about nothing. This data was translated into instructions for a manufacturing robot which carved out the shapes from the interior of a block of stone to create a void space. An introduction by the artists, a text by Gustav Metzger, and four contextualising essays by writers across the fields of literature, art, science, and technology explore the diverse historical and conceptual grounding for, and broader implications of, Null Object's production process. Exhibition: WORK Gallery, London, UK, 30.11.2012–9.2.2013.

New Tendencies Armin Medosch, 2022-11-01. An account of a major international art movement originating in the former Yugoslavia in the 1960s, which anticipated key aspects of information aesthetics. New Tendencies, a nonaligned modernist art movement, emerged in the early 1960s in the former Yugoslavia, a nonaligned country. It represented a new sensibility rejecting both Abstract Expressionism and socialist realism in an attempt to formulate an art adequate to the age of advanced mass production. In this book Armin Medosch examines the development of New Tendencies as a major international art movement in the context of social political and technological history Doing so he traces concurrent paradigm shifts the change from Fordism the political economy of mass production and consumption to the information society and the change from postwar modernism to dematerialized postmodern art practices Medosch explains that New Tendencies rather than opposing the forces of technology as most artists and intellectuals of the time did imagined the rapid advance of technology to be a springboard into a future beyond alienation and oppression Works by New Tendencies cast the viewer as coproducer abolishing the idea of artist as creative genius and replacing it with the notion of the visual researcher In 1968 and 1969 the group actively turned to the computer as a medium of visual research anticipating new media and digital art Medosch discusses modernization in then Yugoslavia and other nations on the periphery looks in detail at New Tendencies five major exhibitions in Zagreb the capital of Croatia and considers such topics as the group's relation to science the changing relationship of manual and intellectual labor New Tendencies in the international art market their engagement with computer art and the group's eventual eclipse by other new art practices including conceptualism land art and arte povera Numerous illustrations document New Tendencies works and exhibitions
