Confucianism, A Habit of the Heart Philip J. Ivanhoe, Sungmoon Kim, 2016-02-01 Employs Robert Bellah s notion of civil religion to explore East Asia s Confucian revival Can Confucianism be regarded as a civil religion for East Asia This book explores this question bringing the insights of Robert Bellah to a consideration of various expressions of the contemporary Confucian revival Bellah identified American civil religion as a religious dimension of life that can be found throughout US culture but one without any formal institutional structure Rather this civil form of religion provides the ethical principles that command reverence and by which a nation judges itself Extending Bellah s work contributors from both the social sciences and the humanities conceive of East Asia s Confucian revival as a habit of the heart an underlying belief system that guides a society and examine how Confucianism might function as a civil religion in China Korea and Japan They discuss what aspects of Confucian tradition and thought are being embraced some of the social movements political factors and opportunities connected with the revival of the tradition and why Confucianism has not traveled much beyond East Asia The late Robert Bellah s reflection on the possibility for a global civil religion concludes the volume

Habits of the heart ,1989 Bellah led a team of sociologists in interviewing some 200 Americans on love work success and values Blending interviews with historical analysis they explore what habits of the heart move Americans and what beliefs and practices shape their character and social order They examine the traditions Americans use to make sense of themselves and their society and show that while individualism creates self reliant heroes it also destroys the fabric of community and the capacity for commitment to one another Most of the people interviewed wives and husbands managers psychotherapists local businessmen and civic activists are split between a public world of competitive striving and a private world supposed to provide the meaning and love that make the competitive jungle bearable For sale in India at Rs 66 00

Habits of the Balkan Heart Stjepan Gabriel Meštrović, Slaven Letica, Miroslav Goreta, 1993 Almost as soon as Communism fell in Eastern Europe in 1989 Western politicians and intellectuals concluded that the West had won the Cold War and that liberal democracy had triumphed over authoritarianism in the world Euphoria spread with the expectation of a New World Order Within months the giddy optimism began to fade especially in the face of what soon became a brutal war in former Yugoslavia Why did Serbia choose to replicate many of Germany's methods and aims from World Wars I and II including ethnic cleansing read genocide and a campaign to establish a Greater Serbia Sociologist Stjepan Mestrovic writing with Slaven Letica and Miroslav Goreta argues that the social and political character of the Dinaric herdsman which dominates Serbian culture and politics even though it is found in all Balkan nations accounts for the form Communism took there the fall of Communism and the savagery and brutality of the post Communist war With carefully reasoned analysis the authors show how sociological theories of social character propounded by such thinkers as de Tocqueville Veblen and Bellah can shed light on the conflicts in the Balkans which according to conventional wisdom were not supposed to occur when Communism fell They demonstrate that ancient traditional ethnic social and nationalistic tendencies habits of the heart of the various people of the Balkans have taken precedence over pressures for democracy in the political and cultural vacuum left by the end of Communism in the region Unfortunately the difficulties in the Balkans will persist for a long time to come and similar conflicts could break out in the former Soviet Union This thought provoking book has much new to say about the causes of such ethnic and class conflicts in the region and the feasibility of policies for dealing with these sores If democracy is to be achieved in post Communist East Europe the authors argue it must be based on the good habits of the heart that coexist there with bad or authoritarian social character Habits of the Heart Robert N.
