Half The World Half A Chance An Introduction To Gender And Development:

Half the World, Half a Chance Julia Cleves Mosse, 1993 Half the World Half a Chance Julia Cleves Mosse, Julia Mosse, 1993 What is gender and why is it a development issue How can development projects and programmes take gender related issues into account This book explains how and why women are disadvantaged not only by social and economic structures but also by many current development initiatives Gender and Agricultural Development Helen Kreider Henderson, 2022-03-29 Agricultural planning and development are crucial to human survival but they usually proceed without any consideration of the importance of gender issues at the production level Although women have long been prime movers in agriculture their contribution to the world's food supply has been largely ignored and consequently their stake in development has been undermined This book is both a resource guide and a review of major issues in gender and agriculture which demonstrates that recognizing the contribution of women to agricultural production is a necessary step in development planning It presents relevant information and research literature regarding women's roles in agriculture in a consolidated and accessible format offering insights into how the inclusion or exclusion of appropriate information at the planning stage can have an impact during implementation It also provides guidelines for locating information on gender related agricultural issues and incorporating it into development planning research and training The literature reviewed not only calls attention to the work women do in order to improve their access to technology and training but also challenges existing development paradigms The issues discussed present women's experiences and local knowledge and allude to gender and class inequities that farming women face Each chapter is intended to help the reader address major gender issues in a specific subject in order to access relevant information and thereby better design and implement appropriate agricultural planning and policies By synthesizing twenty years of international research Gender and Agricultural Development provides an effective tool for development practitioners to use in training programs or surveys in order to ensure the appropriate collection of gender disaggregated data and for educators to integrate gender issues into courses dealing with social aspects of agricultural systems Its findings are presented in such a way as to allow them to be easily incorporated into innovative planning for more sustainable and equitable agricultural policies Gender, Water and Development Anne Coles, Tina Wallace, 2020-05-12 There is a renewed global commitment to water for all Yet even though women are usually responsible for domestic water provision their needs and voices continue to be marginalized in the development process A close analysis of current policy and practice shows that organizations providing improved water supplies to poor communities typically neglect the gendered nature of access to and control over water resources The resulting gender bias causes inefficiencies and injustices in water provision and reduces the effectiveness of well meant efforts This book shows how in different environmental historical and cultural contexts gender has been an important element in water provision It draws on a wide range of first hand material analyzed from different disciplinary perspectives

Case studies include analysis of the role of water in inhibiting the fight against HIV AIDS in southern Africa and the challenges of taking gender into account in large water projects in India and Nepal

Religion and Social Development in Post-apartheid South Africa Ignatius Swart, Hermann Rocher, Sulina Green, Johannes Erasmus, 2010-10-01 It reflects original research and contributes to new developments in the field of theology and religion with regard to its developmental role within a transformation context The book may easily stand out in future as seminal in the way that it promoted the social development debate of the church and its organisational structures from an interdisciplinary focus Prof Antoinette Lombard Department of Social Work and Criminology University of Pretoria

Transforming Gender and Development in East Asia Esther Ngan-ling Chow, 2013-12-02 Transforming Gender and Development in East Asia brings together a collection of original essays from top scholars in the United States and Asia to explore the centrality of gender in the process of economic development in East Asia Contributors demonstrate through ethnography personal narratives field observation and in depth interviews the essential parts women have played in the national growth economic restructuring and industrialization of East Asian countries including South Korea Taiwan China Hong Kong Singapore and China

Second World, Second Sex Kristen Ghodsee, 2019-01-31 Women from the state socialist countries in Eastern Europe what used to be called the Second World once dominated women s activism at the United Nations but their contributions have been largely forgotten or deemed insignificant in comparison with those of Western feminists In Second World Second Sex Kristen Ghodsee rescues some of this lost history by tracing the activism of Eastern European and African women during the 1975 United Nations International Year of Women and the subsequent Decade for Women 1976 1985 Focusing on case studies of state socialist Bulgaria and nonaligned but socialist leaning Zambia Ghodsee examines the feminist networks that developed between the Second and Third Worlds and shows how alliances between socialist women challenged American women s leadership of the global women s movement Drawing on interviews and archival research across three continents Ghodsee argues that international ideological competition between capitalism and socialism profoundly shaped the world women inhabit today

Democracy and Development R.C. Bhardwaj, K. Vijayakrishnan, 2018-10-26 Published in 1998 The question of whether democracy and development are allies or adversaries has long been debated and with the triumph of the democratic spirit worldwide the relationship between democracy and development has once again come to attract much attention globally The collapse of the Soviet Union and the developments in Eastern Europe led to considerable rethinking in political circles on the efficacy of the economic policies pursued in those countries and the long term viability of political systems prevalent there Elsewhere several newly industrialized countries are striving to consolidate their gains though there are differing perceptions of whether their politics conform to the classical framework of democracy or not In a remarkable turn around some other countries have initiated measures for economic reforms and structural adjustment setting aside their earlier approaches towards economic management In short the last decades of this millennium have witnessed meaningful efforts worldwide on forging a new partnership between democracy and development In February 1996 the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association jointly organized a conference entitled Parliamentary Democracy and Development Allies or Adversaries with the Wilton Park an international agency of the British Commonwealth and Foreign Office in Wilton House West Sussex United Kingdom The week long conference brought together parliamentarians diplomats administrators political scientists economists and specialists from all over the world The participants shared their views and experiences on diverse aspects of the main theme This publication presents an essentially parliamentary perspective on the correlation between democracy and development based on the discussions at the Wilton Park conference and in the light of current thinking on the subject matter

Gender and Tourism Sustainability Claudia Eger, Ana María Munar, Cathy H.C. Hsu, 2023-03-21 This book examines the relationship between gender and sustainability in tourism Whilst an extensive body of work exists in the areas of gender and sustainability these two fields of knowledge are seldom combined to examine tourism phenomena When we look at the evolution of tourism we see that sustainability has become an essential element in educational programmes policy making and strategic considerations for organisations and destinations Whilst the beginnings of tourism sustainability were challenging presently its relevance is seldom questioned However this situation is not the case with gender research Although gender theorising and research have existed for over a century and a rich legacy of knowledge exists on this topic meaningful and respectful engagement with this line of scholarship is thus far peripheral in tourism studies The aim of this book is to reflect on and rethink the intersection of gender and tourism sustainability through the lens of gender theory and feminist epistemology to stay with the trouble and devise pathways for sustainability gender knowledge This book will be of great interest to students researchers and academics in tourism gender and sustainability as well as tourism management The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Sustainable Tourism

Gender situational analysis of the Barotse Floodplain Kwashimbisa, M., Puskur, R., 2014-12-16 Zambia s rivers lakes and wetlands support extensive agriculture fisheries and livestock production and contribute to the livelihoods of about 3 million people or 25% of the country s population These aquatic agricultural systems are particularly important to poor people and provide significant opportunities for agriculture based economic growth The majority 72% of the Zambian population is engaged in agricultural activities of which almost 65% are women There is now widespread recognition of the importance of gender and development This is reflected in the growing prominence of gender strategies for development organizations and their programs the emergence of compelling approaches for gender integration and the development of indicators for tracking outcomes of research and development interventions This analysis based on information gathered from both female and male farmers of different age groups attempts to provide a glimpse into aspects that have not been widely studied in agricultural research The knowledge generated here is expected to shape the planned research interventions in AAS that aim to reduce gender disparities in access to resources but also address social and behavioural change at various levels to tackle the causes of these inequities
