

H. G. Wells

A large, red, tentacle-like alien creature with a bulbous, perforated head and many long, thin tentacles is hovering over a city at night. The creature's head is a large, reddish-brown sphere with a grid of small holes. Its tentacles are long and thin, with small, sharp, barbed protrusions along their length. The creature is positioned in the center of the frame, with its head near the top and its tentacles reaching down towards the city. The city below is dark, with silhouettes of buildings and trees. A few power lines are visible in the sky. The overall scene is set against a dark, night-time background.
