Fortress Excavations 1972 74 Minor Excavations On The Fortress:

The Fortress Excavations, 1972-1974 and Minor Excavations on the Fortress and Flavian Fort William Harry Manning,1989 Studies in the Roman and Medieval Archaeology of Exeter Stephen Rippon,Neil Holbrook,2021-04-28 This second volume presenting the research carried out through the Exeter A Place in Time project presents a series of specialist contributions that underpin the general overview published in the first volume Chapter 2 provides summaries of the excavations carried out within the city of Exeter between 1812 and 2019 while Chapter 3 draws together the evidence for the plan of the legionary fortress and the streets and buildings of the Roman town Chapter 4 presents the medieval documentary evidence relating to the excavations at three sites in central Exeter High Street Trichay Street and Goldsmith Street with the excavation reports being in Chapter 5 7 Chapter 8 reports on the excavations and documentary research at Rack Street in the south east quarter of the city There follows a series of papers covering recent research into the archaeometallurgical debris dendrochronology Roman pottery Roman ceramic building material Roman querns and millstones Claudian coins an overview of the Roman coins from Exeter and Devon medieval pottery and the human remains found in a series of medieval cemeteries

Rome Against Caratacus Graham Webster,2019-05-20 The Roman Conquest of Britain in AD 43 was one of the most important turning points in the history of the British Isles It left a legacy still discernible today in the form of archaeological remain road networks land divisions and even language In his much acclaimed trilogy now up dated and revised Dr Webster builds up a fascinating and lively picture of Britain in the first century AD and discussed in detail the various types of evidence and the theories based upon it Caratacus last stand against the Romans has a central place in the folklore of the Welsh Marches where many a hill is claimed to be the site of the famous battle But as Graham Webster shows this epic encounter was not only real history but also part of an intricate ten year series of campaigns conducted after the initial conquest of Britain By interpreting the ancient historical accounts and piecing together the masses of archaeological evidence Dr Webster has brilliantly reconstructed this central period of the Claudian Conquest of Britain and its immediate aftermath

Investigations Along Monnow Street, Monmouth A. G. Marvell,2001 A report on the excavation of three sites on Minnow Street Monmouth during the 1980s and 1990s Two of the sites contained features and finds indicative of Roman ironworking and agriculture during the 4th and 5th century and defensive features which may have been associated with a nearby earlier military building The excavations suggested that the town expanded rapidly following the construction of the Norman castle but that this part of the town continually suffered from economic fluctuations Each excavation is reported on individually but the finds are examined together

A Companion to Roman Britain Malcolm Todd,2008-04-15 This major survey of the history and culture of Roman Britain spans the period from the first century BC to the fifth century AD Major survey of the history and culture of Roman Britain Brings together specialists to provide an overview of recent debates about this period Exceptionally broad coverage embracing political economic cultural and religious life Focuses on changes in Roman Britain from the first century BC to the fifth century AD Includes pioneering studies of the human population and animal resources of the island Landscapes and Artefacts Steven Ashley, Adrian Marsden, 2014-07-18 Andrew Rogerson is one of the most important and influential archaeologists currently working in East Anglia This collection will be essential reading for those interested in the history and archaeology of Norfolk and Suffolk in the interpretation of artefacts within their landscape contexts and in the material culture of the Middle Ages People and Spaces in Roman Military Bases Penelope M. Allison, 2013-10-31 This study uses artefact distribution analyses to investigate the activities that took place inside early Roman imperial military bases Focusing especially on non combat activities it explores the lives of families and other support personnel who are widely assumed to have inhabited civilian settlements outside the fortification walls Spatial analyses in GIS type environments are used to develop fresh perspectives on the range of people who lived within the walls of these military establishments the various industrial commercial domestic and leisure activities in which they and combat personnel were involved and the socio spatial organisation of these activities and these establishments The book includes examples of both legionary fortresses and auxiliary forts from the German provinces to demonstrate that more material cultural approaches to the artefact assemblages from these sites give greater insights into how these military communities operated and demonstrate the problems of ascribing functions to buildings without investigating the full material record The Unknown Warrior Richard Osgood, 2005-11-17 A tale of the poor bloody infantry and what we glean of their lot from prehistory right through to World War I This book compares the life of the soldier across time and cultures It includes the great battles of medieval Europe The Elliptical Building , 2000 The Legionary Fortress at Wroxeter Graham Webster, 2014-06-30 The Roman legionary fortress at Wroxeter Viroconium Cornoviorum was built on a strategic crossing point on the River Severn Though the site of the Roman town had long been known through the presence of upstanding ruins the major excavations reported here have shown how the town plan was dominated by the underlying fortress This fortress had been established by Legio XIV c AD 60 and had then been partially rebuilt c AD 66 when the legion was replaced by Legio XX The fortress was downgraded in the late 70s to become a depot for stores before final abandonment c AD 90 The excavations produced extensive evidence for the laying out and construction of the legionary earth and timber defences and of an area within the fortress to the north of the via praetorian where mess halls barrack blocks and a storehouse were found as well as considerable quantities of coins metalwork pottery and glass The Evolution and Role of Burial Practice in Roman Wales K. J. Pollock, 2006 The established view of burials in Wales during the Roman period has been that with a few exceptions they would conform to Roman types Dr Pollock's detailed examination of the available evidence shows that on the contrary native burial types and influences can be found during the Roman period even in heavily Romanized areas An analysis of the data is provided chronologically geographically and in terms of the function of the surrounding settlement urban rural military etc Bulletin of the Institute of Archaeology , 1990 Numbers for 1958 73 include the annual reports of the Institute for 1956 57 71 72 A Catalogue of Roman Military Equipment in the National Museum of Wales Evan M. Chapman, 2005 All of the Roman military equipment featured in this catalogue was found in Wales reflecting the region's domination by both soldiers and forts for approximately 350 years Many objects are catalogued and illustrated here followed by a gazetteer which provides background information on the sites where the objects were found

Excavations at South Shields Roman Fort Paul T. Bidwell, Stephen Speak, 1994 British Archaeological Abstracts, 1990 Bulletin University of London. Institute of Archaeology, 1988 The Work of Giants Andrew F. Pearson, 2006 Roman society demanded stone on a massive and unprecedented scale but while its buildings often survive to impress the world ancient quarrying is a forgotten industry Drawing on the latest archaeological evidence Andrew Pearson examines the diverse practices of procuring stone and explains how the products of quarrying were transported and employed within Roman buildings As well as the major industries such as Purbeck and Bath attention is paid to the smaller enterprises and to foreign quarries and their products Based largely on the author's own research this is a long overdue study without competition It will be important reading for students of the Roman economy The Roman Small Finds from Excavations in Colchester 1971-9 Nina Crummy, 1983 Prehistoric and Roman Sites in East Devon: Romano-British sites Andrew P. Fitzpatrick, Jan Grove, Chris A. Butterworth, 1999 Colchester, Fortress of the War God David Radford, Adrian Gascoyne, 2013-07-19 This volume is a critical assessment of the current state of archaeological knowledge of the settlement originally called Camulodunon and now known as Colchester The town has been the subject of antiquarian interest since the late 16th century and the first modern archaeological excavations occurred in 1845 close to Colchester Castle the town's most prominent historic site The earliest significant human occupation recorded from Colchester dates to the late Neolithic but it was only towards the end of the 1st century BC that an oppidum was established in the area This was superseded initially by a Roman legionary fortress and then the colonia of Camulodunum on a hilltop bounded on the north and east by the river Colne There is little evidence for continuing occupation here in the early post Roman period but in 917 the town was re-established as a burgh and gradually grew in importance After the Norman Conquest a castle was built on the foundations of the ruined Roman Temple of Claudius and a priory and an abbey were established just to the south of the walled town Although the town as elsewhere was affected by the Dissolution of the Monasteries and the English Civil War it remained essentially medieval in character until the 18th century During the 19th century this process of change was accelerated by the arrival of the railway industrialisation and the establishment of the military garrison Since the 1960s Colchester has been subject to recurring phases of re-development the most recent having ended only in 2007 which have had a significant impact on the historic environment Fortunately the town is one of the best studied in the country
