The Cognitive Foundations of Reading and Its Acquisition Wesley A. Hoover, William E. Tunmer, 2020-06-09 This book serves as a succinct resource on the cognitive requirements of reading It provides a coherent overall view of reading and learning to read and does so in a relatively sparse fashion that supports retention The initial sections of the book describe the cognitive structure of reading and the cognitive foundation upon which that structure is built This is followed by discussions of how an understanding of these cognitive requirements can be used in practice with standards assessments curriculum and instruction to advance the teaching of reading and the delivery of interventions for students who encounter difficulties along the way The book focuses on reading in English as its exemplar but shows how its framework can be adapted to understand the broad cognitive requirements for reading and learning to read in any phonologically based orthography It provides a way for reading professionals to think about reading and its development and gives them mechanisms that coupled with such understanding will help them link what children must know to become strong readers to what teaching can best provide through the competent use of available tools In this way the book will help reading professionals be both efficient and effective in what they provide all their students and be much better equipped to support those students who struggle to learn to read

Emergent Literacy and

Language Development Paula M. Rhyner, 2009-06-18 This concise accessible book explores the connection between language acquisition and emergent literacy skills and how this sets the stage for later literacy development Chapters address formative early experiences such as speaking and listening being read to and talking about print concepts and the alphabet Written for early childhood professionals reading specialists and speech language pathologists the book describes effective assessment and instructional approaches for fostering language learning and emergent literacy in typically developing children and those at risk for language delays Vivid case examples illustrate specific ways to collaborate with parents to give all children a strong foundation for school readiness and success Assessment for Reading Instruction, Third Edition Michael C. McKenna, Katherine A. Dougherty Stahl, 2015-06-23 This book has been replaced by Assessment for Reading Instruction Fourth Edition ISBN 978 1 4625 4157 7 Developmental Disorders of Language Learning and Cognition Charles Hulme, Margaret J. Snowling, 2013-04-02 This important new text is a comprehensive survey of current thinking and research on a wide range of developmental disorders Highlights key research on normal and typical development Includes clinical case studies and diagrams to illustrate key concepts A reader friendly writing style Theories of Reading Development Kate Cain, Donald L. Compton, Rauno K. Parrila, 2017-08-15 The use of printed words to capture language is one of the most remarkable inventions of humankind and learning to read them is one of the most remarkable achievements of individuals In recent decades how we learn to read and understand printed text has been studied intensely in genetics education psychology and cognitive science and both the volume of research papers and breadth of the topics they examine have increased exponentially Theories of Reading Development collects within a single volume state of the art descriptions of important theories of reading development and disabilities The included chapters focus on multiple aspects of reading development and are written by leading experts in the field Each chapter is an independent theoretical review of the topic to which the authors have made a significant contribution and can be enjoyed on its own or in relation to others in the book The volume is written for professionals graduate students and researchers in education psychology and cognitive neuroscience It can be used either as a core or as a supplementary text in senior undergraduate and graduate education and psychology courses focusing on reading development Singing the New Song Katherine Zieman, 2013-02-12 In Singing the New Song Katherine Zieman examines the institutions and practices of the liturgy as central to changes in late medieval English understandings of the written word Where previous studies have described how writing comes to supplant oral forms of communication or how it objectifies relations of power formerly transacted through ritual and ceremony Zieman shifts the critical gaze to the ritual performance of written texts in the liturgy effectively changing the focus from writing to reading Beginning with a history of the elementary educational institution known to modern scholars as the song school Zieman shows the continued centrality of liturgical and devotional texts to the earliest stages of literacy training and spiritual formation Originally these schools were created to provide liturgical training for literate adult performers who had already mastered the grammatical arts From the late thirteenth century on however the attention and resources of both lay and clerical patrons came to be devoted specifically to young boys centering on their function as choristers Because choristers needed to be trained before they received instruction in grammar the liturgical skills of reading and singing took on a different meaning This shift in priorities Zieman argues is paradigmatic of broader cultural changes in which increased interest in liturgical performance and varying definitions attached to reading and singing caused these practices to take on a life of their own unyoked from their original institutional settings of monastery and cathedral Unmoored from the context of the choral community reading and singing developed into discrete portable skills that could be put to use in a number of contexts sacred and secular Latin and vernacular Ultimately they would be carried into a wider public sphere where they would be transformed into public modes of discourse appropriated by vernacular writers such as Geoffrey Chaucer and William Langland
