Theory, Practice, and Community Development Mark Brennan, Jeffrey Birdger, Theodore R. Alter, 2013-06-19

essays feature topics as varied as placemaking democratic theory and rural organizing Theory Practice and Community Development is vital for scholars and practitioners coming to grips with the rapidly changing definition of community

New Perspectives in Urban Geography Sant Bahadur Singh,1996 Urban Geography has been consistently growing as a systematic branch of reographical knowing Its scope and subject matter has been broadened its analytical focus has been realigned and its analytical tools have been refined The book focuses upon multifaceted themes with regard to status growth and concepts in urban geography urban settlement pattern of urbanization in developing countries The uniqueness of the book lies in managing contributions from schools from developing as well as developed counties The contributions included in this book are indicative of some of the new perspective which urban geography have been studing for quite sometime now

The Rural Richard Munton,2017-05-15 The rural has long been regarded as an important site of geographical inquiry even if our understanding of it has not always been treated as conceptually different from the urban That said rural research has pursued a number of distinct empirical agendas ranging from the operation and impacts of agribusiness to local resistance to global food supply chains to differing representations of the rural In doing so rural geographers have critically examined the relevance and significance of ideas drawn from numerous traditions including political economy ecological modernization and cultural theory amending them as appropriate in their search to understand the nature and trajectory of rural areas Up until the 1980s attention remained largely focused upon agriculture as the primary land use but increasingly new forms of rural consumption housing recreation nature conservation have taken centre stage as the primacy of local agricultures has been undermined by reduced state protection and new rural populations which have migrated out from the city More recently research has been dominated by the cultural turn with particular emphases upon society nature relations interpretations of landscape marginalised others and analyses of the relations between representation and practice In the last decade a more holistic view of the rural bringing together different aspects of the two previous themes has emerged through more politically oriented studies of rural governance concerned with the functioning of interest groups participation protest and the allocation and management of resources The volume is thus structured into three sections concerned with agriculture and food the rural and rural governance The great majority of the selected papers combine both empirical material often highly informative case studies and important conceptual arguments about change in the rural condition that can be linked to ideas being employed elsewhere in Geography and the Social Sciences more generally These critical reflections have been drawn very largely from research conducted in advanced economies which at least provide some commonality of experience allowing the transfer of ideas between what otherwise might be seen as very differing geographical contexts

Landscape-scale Conservation Planning Stephen C. Trombulak, Robert Baldwin, 2010-09-21. Hugh P. Possingham. Landscape-scale conservation planning is coming of age. In the last couple of decades, conservation practitioners working at all levels of governance and all spatial scales have embraced the CARE principles of conservation planning: Comprehensiveness, Adequacy, Representativeness, and Efficiency. Hundreds of papers have been written on this theme, and several different kinds of software programs have been developed and used around the world, making conservation planning based on these principles global in its reach and influence. Does this mean that all the science of conservation planning is over that the discovery phase has been replaced by an engineering phase as we move from defining the rules to implementing them in the landscape This book and the continuing growth in the literature suggest that the answer to this question is most definitely no All of applied conservation can be wrapped up into a single sentence what should be done the action in what place at what time using what mechanism and for what outcome the objective It all seems pretty simple what where when how and why However stating a problem does not mean it is easy to solve
