active research has led to rapid progress in our understanding of the economics of fisheries. Fishing however is a complicated activity involving intricate interactions between man made fishing capital and naturally produced fish stocks in an inherently dynamic and stochastic setting. Consequently in spite of significant advances important sections of fisheries economics remain largely unexplored. One such area is the economics of migratory fish stocks. In 1985 the editors of this volume embarked on a research project concerned with the optimal utilization of common Nordic fish stocks. A fundamental feature of some of the most important of these fish stocks such as the Atlanto Scandian herring and the Icelandic capelin is their migratory behaviour. Not only do the migrations continuously alter the economic conditions for harvesting these species. They also result in the periodical transfer of stock concentrations from one exclusive fisheries jurisdictions to another. It was readily apparent that this behaviour constituted a crucial determinant of the appropriate harvesting pattern of these stocks. More importantly however migrations are by no means a unique feature of Nordic fish stocks. In fact it appears that migratory behaviour is exhibited albeit in varying degrees by all species of fish. It therefore stands to reason that migrations constitute an important aspect of the economics of fisheries in general.

The Economics of Climate-Resilient Development Sam Fankhauser, Thomas K.J. McDermott, 2016-07-27 Some climate change is now inevitable and strategies to adapt to these changes are quickly developing. The question is particularly paramount for low income countries which are likely to be most affected. This timely and unique book takes an integrated look at the twin challenges of climate change and development. The book treats adaptation to climate change as an issue of climate resilient development rather than as a bespoke set of activities flood defences drought plans and so on combining climate and development challenges into a single strategy. It asks how the standard approaches to development need to change and what socio economic trends and urbanisation mean for the vulnerability of developing countries to climate risks. Combining conceptual thinking with practical policy prescriptions and experience the contributors argue that to address these questions climate risk has to be embedded fully into wider development strategies.

The Cultures of Economic Migration Tope Omoniyi, 2016-03-16 This volume explores the processes of economic migration the social conditions that follow it and the discourses that underlie research into it. Reflecting critically on economic migration and on the process of studying and creating knowledge about it the contributors address the question of whether recent enquiries into modernity bring a newer and better comprehension of the nature of dislocation and movement or whether these serve simply to replicate familiar modes of placing people and individuals. The book is organized into perspectives in and on specific continents Europe Asia and Africa in order to explore notions regarding economic migration within and across regions as well as towards displacing the Eurocentrism of many studies of migration.

The Economic Geography of Cross-Border Migration Karima Kourtit, Bruce Newbold, Peter Nijkamp, Mark Partridge, 2020-12-07 This handbook presents a collection of high quality authoritative scientific contributions on cross border migration written by a carefully selected group of recognized migration experts from around the globe. In recent years cross border migration has become an important and intriguing issue from both a scientific and policy perspective In the age of migration the volume of cross border movements of people continues to rise while the nature of migration flows in terms of the determinants length of stay effects on the sending and host countries and legal status of migrants is changing dramatically Based on a detailed economic geographical analysis this handbook studies the motives for cross border migration the socio economic implications for sending countries and regions the locational choice determinants for cross border migrants and the manifold economic geographic consequences for host countries and regions Given the complexity of migration decisions and their local or regional impacts a systematic typology of migrants motives legal status level of education gender age singles or families etc is provided together with an assessment of push factors in the place of origin and pull factors at the destination On the basis of a solid analytical framework and reliable empirical evidence it examines the impacts of emigration for sending areas and of immigration for receiving areas and provides a comprehensive discussion of the policy dimensions of cross border migration
