Emerging Infectious Diseases, 2006 Collecting as Modernist Practice Jeremy Braddock, 2012-02-15 Winner of the Modernist Studies Association Book Prize of the Modernist Studies Association. In this highly original study, Jeremy Braddock focuses on collective forms of modernist expression: the art collection, the anthology, and the archive, and their importance in the development of institutional and artistic culture in the United States. Using extensive archival research, Braddock's study synthetically examines the overlooked practices of major American art collectors and literary editors: Albert Barnes, Alain Locke, Duncan Phillips, Alfred Kreymborg, Amy Lowell, Ezra Pound, Katherine Dreier, and Carl Van Vechten. He reveals the way collections were devised as both models for modernism's future institutionalization and culturally productive objects and aesthetic forms in themselves. Rather than anchoring his study in the familiar figures of the individual poet, artist, and work, Braddock gives us an entirely new account of how modernism was made, one centered on the figure of the collector and the practice of collecting. Collecting as Modernist Practice demonstrates that modernism's cultural identity was secured not so much through the selection of a canon of significant works as by the development of new practices that shaped the social meaning of art. Braddock has us revisit the contested terrain of modernist culture prior to the dominance of institutions such as the Museum of Modern Art and the university curriculum so that we might consider modernisms that could have been. Offering the most systematic review to date of the Barnes Foundation, an intellectual genealogy and analysis of The New Negro anthology, and studies of a wide range of hitherto ignored anthologies and archives, Braddock convincingly shows how artistic and literary collections helped define the modernist movement in the United States.

Wild Exuberance Rebecca Foster, Caroline M. Welsh, 2005-06-16 Early in his career, critics and collectors widely recognized that Harold Weston (1894-1972) was capturing and saying something unusual in his paintings. There is a young American painter, wrote Duncan Phillips, who stirs in me the hope for a rebirth on this new soil of something that was lost to the art of painting with the passing of Vincent van Gogh. Along with 104 color and ten black and white plates of Weston's works, compiled by his daughter Nina Weston Foster, curator of the Harold Weston Foundation, the catalog includes essays that cover myriad aspects of Weston's life and art. The Adirondack Museum's chief curator, Caroline M. Welsh, explores nature and wilderness preservation as themes in twentieth-century art and places Weston in the context of his contemporaries who painted the Adirondacks. Theodore E. Stebbins Jr., curator of American art at the Fogg Art Museum, provides a critical analysis of Weston as a twentieth-century American modernist painter. The
