Elgin An American History 18351985:

Dispatches from Dystopia Kate Brown, 2015-05-01 Why are Kazakhstan and Montana the same place asks one chapter of Kate Brown's surprising and unusual journey into the histories of places on the margins overlooked or erased. It turns out that a ruined mining town in Kazakhstan and Butte Montana America's largest environmental Superfund site have much more in common than one would think thanks to similarities in climate hucksterism and the perseverance of their few hardy inhabitants. Taking readers to these and other unlikely locales Dispatches from Dystopia delves into the very human and sometimes very fraught ways we come to understand a particular place its people and its history. In Dispatches from Dystopia Brown wanders the Chernobyl Zone of Alienation first on the Internet and then in person to figure out which version the real or the virtual is the actual forgery. She also takes us to the basement of a hotel in Seattle to examine the personal possessions left in storage by Japanese Americans on their way to internment camps in 1942. In Uman Ukraine we hide with Brown in a tree in order to witness the annual male only Rosh Hashanah celebration of Hasidic Jews. In the Russian southern Urals she speaks with the citizens of the small city of Kyshtym where invisible radioactive pollutants have mysteriously blighted lives. Finally Brown returns home to Elgin Illinois in the midwestern industrial rust belt to investigate the rise of rustalgia and the ways her formative experiences have inspired her obsession with modernist wastelands. Dispatches from Dystopia powerfully and movingly narrates the histories of locales that have been silenced broken or contaminated. In telling these previously unknown stories Brown examines the making and unmaking of place and the lives of the people who remain in the fragile landscapes that are left behind.

Manufacturing Time Amy Glasmeier, 2000-08-10 Since the large scale manufacture of personal timepieces began industry leadership has shifted among widely disparate locations production systems and cultures. This book recounts the story of the quest for supremacy in the manufacture of watches from the cottage industries of Britain to the preeminence of Switzerland and later the United States to the high tech plants of Japan and the sweatshops of Hong Kong. Glasmeier examines both the strategies adopted by specific firms and the interplay of such varying influences as technological change cyclical economic downturns war and national trade policies. In so doing she delineates a cohesive framework within which to address such broader questions as how sustained regional economic development takes place or starts and then stops how decisions made by corporations are structured by internal and external forces and the ways industrial cultures with different strategic learning capabilities facilitate or thwart the pursuit of technological change.

Marking Modern Times Alexis McCrossen, 2013-05 In Marking Modern Times Alexis McCrossen relates how the American preoccupation with time led people from across social classes to acquire watches and clocks and expands our understanding of the ways we have standardized time and have made timekeepers serve as political social and cultural tools in a society that not merely values time but regards access to it as a natural born right.
