two with his family He recalls moving to Fort Worth at the age of seven feeling excited about his new home and making new friends in the neighborhood and at school In a neighborhood established around the time of World War II he and his friends played war in their backyards The child of a geologist and a homemaker Murph vividly recalls the strong influence they were in his life Murph s story follows him from early childhood through high school graduation and leaving for college at the University of Texas His enthusiasm for leaving home is tempered by the reality of what it means to leave his parents and younger brother behind a sentiment familiar to any college bound student      The Palace D G Compton,2013-10-02 The palace was several hundred years old a sort of haphazard medieval city containing church buildings stables army barracks and the offices and homes of the ministers of the Revolutionary Government in a Communist satellite country somewhere in Europe The palace rose starkly and threateningly out of the marshes its three great gilt domes reminding observers of the glittering monarchies that once resided there But all was changed all was forbidding We stand too high to be human Katarin says the President of the country to his tempestuous unloving wife The revolution which made him absolute ruler has also taken him away from Katarin dehumanizing him and his power ridden ministers Katarin in defiance of the restrictions that bind her life takes a lover finding herself liberated even as she senses that the consequences are sure to be disastrous
