Forest Policies and Social Change in England

Sylvie Nail, 2008-05-08 Forestry has been witness to some dramatic changes in recent years with several Western countries now moving away from the traditional model of regarding forests merely as sources of wood Rather these countries are increasingly recognizing their forests as multi purpose resources with roles which go far beyond simple economics In this innovative book Sylvie Nail uses England as a case study to explore the relationships between forests society and public perceptions raising important questions about forest policy and management both now and in the future Adopting a sociological approach to forest policy and management the book discusses the current validity of the two principles underlying forestry since the Middle Ages first that forestry should only exist when no better use of the land can be made and second that forestry itself should be profitable The author stresses how values and perceptions shape policies and conversely how policies can modify perceptions and also how policies can fail if they do not take perceptions into account She concludes that many of the issues facing English forestry in the 21st century from leisure health and amenity provision through education and rural as well as urban regeneration to biodiversity conservation go well beyond both national borders and the scope of forestry Indeed forestry in the 21st century seems to be less about planting and managing trees than about being a vector and a mirror of social change This novel synthesis provides a valuable resource for advanced students and researchers from all areas of natural resource studies including those interested in social history socio economics cultural geography and environmental psychology as well as those studying landscape ecology environmental history policy analysis and natural resource management Growth Management and Public Land Acquisition Christopher Coutts,2016-04-15 Bringing together a team of national experts this volume offers a detailed look at the links between public land acquisition programs and efforts to yield smart growth outcomes in the USA Both public land acquisition programs and state and local growth management efforts have been examined in detail but while there is growing recognition that land acquisition can play an important role in smart growth outcomes there has so far been little research into the nexus of these areas of public policy This book investigates various aspects of the land acquisition smart growth linkage and describes model programs and makes recommendations for the adoption of land acquisition efforts nationally and internationally It will appeal to practising planners policy makers public officials and citizen groups as well as academics of urban planning environmental studies geography and other disciplines which examine issues of urban sprawl

the wider contexts of how humanity is dependent on a functioning biodiverse ecosphere of which we are only one part. It provides an original and previously undervalued approach to sustainability and suggests that work towards sustainability is not only a necessity for our children's future but necessary, sensible and meaningful in the present.

Transforming the Quality of Life for People with Dementia through Contact with the Natural World Jane Gilliard, Professor Mary Marshall, 2011-11-15. This important book simply but persuasively demonstrates why we should provide the opportunities for people with dementia to experience the great outdoors. The contributors explore many different ways in which people with dementia can experience and interact with nature.

Natural Heritage Peter Howard, Thymio Papayannis, 2013-10-18. It has become more and more accepted that nature conservation is not possible without taking into account human activities. Thus an integrated approach to both the natural and cultural heritage is being encouraged and developed. Gathering a number of distinguished authors with diverse backgrounds from a religious leader to academics to conservation scientists, the book aims to investigate the relationship between human beings and nature between nature and culture. Looking at nature as heritage of the human race is a recognition both of the tremendous impacts, both positive and negative, that human activities have had on the natural environment as well as the acceptance of human responsibility for managing our planet in a sustainable and sensitive manner. The texts included examine this interface between human beings and nature in specific places from the Everglades in Florida and Mont Saint Michel in Atlantic France to the UK, Europe and the Mediterranean as well as on a theoretical basis and in the context of the international biodiversity conventions.

Aging Studies and Ecocriticism Nassim W. Balestrini, Julia Hoydis, Anna-Christina Kainradl, Ulla Kriebner, 2023-08-15. Aging Studies and Ecocriticism: Interdisciplinary Encounters argues that both aging studies and ecocriticism address the complex dynamics of individual and collective agency, oppression and dependency, care and conviviality, vulnerability and resistance as well as intergenerationality and responsibility. Yet even though both fields employ overlapping methodologies and theoretical frameworks and scrutinize boundary texts in different literary genres which have been analyzed from ecocritical perspectives as well as from the vantage point of critical aging studies, there has been little scholarly interaction between ecocritical literary studies and aging studies to date. The contributors in this volume demonstrate the potential of specific genres to narrate relationality and age and the aesthetic and ethical challenges of imagining changes, endings and survival in the Anthropocene. As the first step towards putting both fields in conversation, this collection offers new pathways into understanding human and nonhuman ecological relations.
