Children Learning French Barbara Rapaport, David Westgate, 2018-06-04 Is the learning of a second language best begun in the junior school Originally published in 1974 the authors draw upon studies of language learning and upon developmental characteristics of children relating them to second language learning in order to assess the appropriateness of French to the curriculum The possibilities and limitations of the task confronting the child are explored The book is a practical one with many references to classroom organisation and teaching techniques The restrictions of imitative learning are relegated to their limited place and a higher aim is suggested that of meaningful and productive language use Books Out Loud, 2007

Hygienic Teacher and Water-cure Journal, 1853 Modern Dance in France (1920-1970) Jacqueline Robinson, 2013-07-04 It was indeed an adventure for those pioneers in France who struggled for the recognition of the new born dance of the twentieth century from the free dance of Isadora Duncan through the absolute dance of Mary Wigman to the modern dance of Martha Graham Jacqueline Robinson has lived at the heart of this adventure sharing the aspirations of a whole generation who often suffered from the lack of understanding of an establishment more inclined towards classical ballet From the breaking of the soil in the twenties to the flowering in the sixties here is a chronicle of the changing landscape of French dance Here is the story of those men and women ploughmen and poets rebels and visionaries the recollection of those events that made it possible for dance as an art form in Western countries to rise again as a fundamental expression of the human spirit The Massachusetts Teacher, 1964 The Lost World of Socialists at

Europe's Margins Maria Todorova, 2020-09-03 Maria Todorova's book is devoted to the golden age of the socialist idea broadly surveying the period in and around the time of the Second International It critically examines the promise for an alternative socialist utopia from 1870 to the 1920s Todorova brings in the experience of the periphery in a comparative context in the belief that the margins can often elucidate better the character of a phenomenon and de-provincialize it from essentialist notions In doing so The Lost World of Socialists at Europe's Margins moves beyond the traditional historiographical emphasis on ideology by looking at different intersections or entanglements of spaces generations genders ideas and feelings and different flows of historical time The study provides a social and cultural history of early socialism in Eastern Europe with an emphasis on Bulgaria arguably the country with the earliest and strongest socialist movement in Southeast Europe and one that had a unique relationship to both German and Russian social democracy Based on a rich prosopographical database of around 3500 biographies of people born in the 19th century the book addresses the interplay of several generations of leftists looking at the specifics of how ideas were generated received transferred and transformed Finally the work investigates the intersection between subjectivity and memory as reflected in a unique cache of archival materials containing over 4000 documentary sources including diaries oral interviews and unpublished memoirs A microhistorical approach to this material allows the reconstruction of structures of feeling that inspired an exceptional group of individuals

Modern sport originated in Europe During the age of Enlightenment gymnastics and athletics from Antiquity were rediscovered and changed into new cultural and educational forms which shaped both the body and the mind The industrialisation of Britain and Europe eventually introduced organisational patterns that gave sport not only a name but also a new structure This was a distinctive product of European civilisation which spread across the modern world The 100 objects that are collected here are both material objects and forms of communication which explore the transformation and diversity of sports games and physical education in Europe whether for training performing or as part of other forms of celebration or festivity This book is the first attempt to create a kaleidoscopic history of European sport through its rich material culture and emerged from a desire to develop transnational research in sports history 110 authors from 39 countries have participated in a genuinely pan European project introducing the reader to the fascinating range of people institutions and places which made up the world of modern European sport
