From The Beginning Archaeology Of Maori:

From the Beginning John Wilson, 1987 From the Beginning The Archaeology of the Maori answers some of these questions describing in detail the latest archaeological findings about the origins physical type technology economy warfare and art of the Maori Māori Archaeology and History of Heretaunga, New Zealand Mark W. Allen, Ngahiwi Tomoana, Stella August, Wikitoria Moore, 2024-11-12 This book uses M ori Kaupapa a M ori approach practice to provide unique insights toward the anthropological understanding of power and place in Heretaunga New Zealand It examines the power of M ori leaders and ancient and modern archaeological and historical landscapes over the past six centuries It highlights M ori warfare characterized by impressive fortifications known as p Severe impacts of the colonial period are also discussed including demographic calamity changes in settlement pattern and the innovative ways that M ori leaders sought to navigate the last half of the nineteenth century Recent history and modern issues are examined as well particularly the rise of tribal self government Importantly the roles of female leaders are examined for each period This book will be of interest across many disciplines for those interested in conflict and warfare complex pre state level societies colonialism power and women and indigenous adaption to globalization From the Beginning, 1987 Encyclopedia of Prehistory Peter N. Peregrine, Melvin Ember, 2012-12-06 The Encyclopedia of Prehistory represents also defined by a somewhat different set of an attempt to provide basic information sociocultural characteristics than are eth on all archaeologically known cultures nological cultures Major traditions are covering the entire globe and the entire defined based on common subsistence prehistory of humankind It is designed as practices sociopolitical organization and a tool to assist in doing comparative material industries but language ideology research on the peoples of the past Most and kinship ties play little or no part in of the entries are written by the world s their definition because they are virtually foremost experts on the particular areas unrecoverable from archaeological con and time periods texts In contrast language ideology and The Encyclopedia is organized accord kinship ties are central to defining ethno ing to major traditions A major tradition logical cultures is defined as a group of populations sharing There are three types of entries in the similar subsistence practices technology Encyclopedia the major tradition entry and forms of sociopolitical organization the regional subtradition entry and the which are spatially contiguous over a rela site entry Each contains different types of tively large area and which endure tempo information and each is intended to be rally for a relatively long period Minimal used in a different way Pākehā Settlements in a Māori World Ian Smith, 2020-01-28 P keh Settlements in a M ori World offers a vivid account of early European experience in these islands through material evidence offered by the archaeological record As European exploration in the 1770s gave way to sealing whaling and timber felling P keh visitors first became sojourners in small remote camps then settlers scattered around the coast Over time mission stations were established alongside farms businesses and industries and eventually towns and government centres Through these decades a small but growing P keh population lived within and alongside a M ori world often interacting closely This phase drew to a close in the 1850s as the numbers of Pakeha began to exceed the Māori population and the wars of the 1860s brought brutal transformation to the emerging society and its economy Archaeologist Ian Smith tells the story of adaptation change and continuity as two vastly different cultures learned to inhabit the same country From the scant physical signs of first contact to the wealth of detail about daily life in established settlements archaeological evidence amplifies the historical narrative Glimpses of a world in the midst of turbulent change abound in this richly illustrated book As the visual narrative makes clear archaeology brings history into the present making the past visible in the landscape around us and enabling an understanding of complex histories in the places we inhabit Being and Becoming Indigenous Archaeologists George Nicholas, 2016-06-16 This volume tells the stories in their own words of 37 indigenous archaeologists from six continents how they became archaeologists and how their dual role affects their relationships with their community and their professional colleagues The Archaeology of Pūerua Doug G. Sutton, Louise Furey, Y. M. Marshall, 2003

The third book to emerge from the Pūerua Project focuses on the pū itself and explores the innovative attempt to use archaeological techniques to explore and understand socio-political processes This book should be of interest to scholars students and amateur archaeologists and historians Making Peoples James Belich, 2002-02-28 Now in paperback This immensely readable book full of drama and humor as well as scholarship is a watershed in the writing of New Zealand history In making many new assertions and challenging many historical myths it seeks to reinterpret our approach to the past Given New Zealand's small population short history and great isolation the history of the archipelago has been saddled with a reputation for mundanity According to James Belich however it is just these characteristics that make New Zealand a historian's paradise a laboratory whose isolation size and recency is an advantage in which the grand themes of world history are often played out more rapidly more separately and therefore more discernably than elsewhere The first of two planned volumes Making Peoples begins with the Polynesian settlement and its development into the Māori tribes in the eleventh century It traces the great encounter between independent Māoridom and expanding Europe from 1642 to 1916 including the foundation of the Pakeha the neo-Europeans of New Zealand between the 1830s and the 1880s It describes the forging of a neo-Polynesia and a neo-Britain and the traumatic interaction between them The author carefully examines the myths and realities that drove the colonialization process and suggests a new living version of one of the most critical and controversial documents in New Zealand's history the Treaty of Waitangi frequently described as New Zealand's Magna Carta The construction of peoples Māori and Pakeha is a recurring theme the response of each to the great shift from extractive to sustainable economics their relationship with their Hawaiikis or ancestors with each other and with myth Essential reading for anyone interested in New Zealand history and in the history of new societies in general Making Peoples: A History of the New Zealanders From Polynesian James Belich, 2007-05-07 A new paperback reprint of this best-selling and ground-breaking history When first published in 1996 Making Peoples was hailed as redefining New Zealand history It was undoubtedly the most important work of New Zealand history since Keith Sinclair's classic A History of New Zealand Making Peoples covers the period from first settlement to the end of the nineteenth century. Part one covers Polynesian background, Maori settlement and pre-contact history. Part two looks at Maori-European relations to 1900. Part three discusses Pakeha colonisation and settlement. James Belich's Making Peoples is a major work which reshapes our understanding of New Zealand history, challenges traditional views and debunks many myths while also recognising the value of myths as historical forces. Many of its assertions are new and controversial.

An Archaeology of Early Christianity in Vanuatu James L. Flexner, 2016-12-19. Religious change is at its core a material as much as a spiritual process. Beliefs related to intangible spirits, ghosts or gods were enacted through material relationships between people, places and objects. The archaeology of mission sites from Tanna and Erromango islands, southern Vanuatu (formerly the New Hebrides), offer an informative case study for understanding the material dimensions of religious change. One of the primary ways that cultural difference was thrown into relief in the Presbyterian New Hebrides missions was in the realm of objects. Christian Protestant missionaries believed that religious conversion had to be accompanied by changes in the material conditions of everyday life. Results of field archaeology and museum research on Tanna and Erromango, southern Vanuatu, show that the process of material transformation was not unidirectional. Just as Melanesian people changed religious beliefs and integrated some imported objects into everyday life, missionaries integrated local elements into their daily lives. Attempts to produce civilised Christian natives or to change some elements of native life relating purely to religion but not others resulted instead in a proliferation of hybrid forms. This is visible in the continuity of a variety of traditional practices subsumed under the umbrella term kastom through to the present alongside Christianity. Melanesians didn't become Christian; Christianity became Melanesian. The material basis of religious change was integral to this process.

The Archaeology of Difference Anne Clarke, Robin Torrence, 2003-09-02. The Archaeology of Difference presents a new and radically different perspective on the archaeology of cross-cultural contact and engagement. The authors move away from acculturation or domination and resistance and concentrate on interaction and negotiation by using a wide variety of case studies which take a crucially indigenous rather than colonial standpoint.

New Zealand Journal of Archaeology, 2007

Guns and Utu Matthew Wright, 2011-08-01. So they went forth and they were given over to death by the guns. Rangipito of Ngati Rahiri. In the two decades before the Treaty of Waitangi, New Zealand was ripped asunder by island-spanning waves of warfare, extreme violence and cannibalism. Great war parties surged the length of the land to avenge historic grievances, killing and burning as they went. Whole peoples were uprooted and found new homes. Despite the name given them by history, one thing we can be certain about is that these dramatic conflicts were not simply musket wars. This was an age of courage, of heroism, of great character and of astonishing deeds. And they are not dead history. Twenty-first century New Zealand has been profoundly shaped by them, not least in the location of most of the major cities. In Guns and Utu, historian Matthew Wright disputes the many mythologies of these wars.
