History Learning and Teaching Scotland. Higher Still Development Unit, 1998      From the Cradle to the Grave Simon Wood, 2002 From the Cradle to the Grave is the second most popular module in the new Intermediate History courses run in Scotland under the Higher Still programme There are currently no books written for this topic so this text will fill the gap The book deals with social history during the period 1890 to 1951 focusing in particular on the changing role of government in tackling the problem of poverty and dealing with a new relationship between the people of Britain and their government

Intermediate History Simon Wood, 2002      Native to the Republic Minayo Nasiali, 2016-10-20 In Native to the Republic Minayo Nasiali traces the process through which expectations about living standards and decent housing came to be understood as social rights in late twentieth century France These ideas evolved through everyday negotiations between ordinary people municipal authorities central state bureaucrats elected officials and social scientists in postwar Marseille Nasiali shows how these local level interactions fundamentally informed evolving ideas about French citizenship and the built environment namely that the institutionalization of social citizenship also created new spaces for exclusion Although everyone deserved social rights some were supposedly more deserving than others From the 1940s through the early 1990s metropolitan discussions about the potential for town planning to transform everyday life were shaped by colonial and later postcolonial migration within the changing empire As a port and the historical gateway to and from the colonies Marseille's interrelated projects to develop welfare institutions and manage urban space make it a particularly significant site for exploring this uneven process Neighborhood debates about the meaning and goals of modernization contributed to normative understandings about which residents deserved access to expanding social rights Nasiali argues that assumptions about racial social and spatial differences profoundly structured a differential system of housing in postwar France Native to the Republic highlights the value of new approaches to studying empire membership in the nation and the welfare state by showing how social citizenship was not simply constituted within imagined communities but also through practices involving the contestation of spaces and the enjoyment of rights      The Crisis of Britain's Surveillance State Musa Khan the State and the State and its Allies Five Eyes TEMPORA PRISM ECHELON and the politics of the Intelligence War have shaken the public perception that their governments respect civil rights and liberties Meanwhile the British welfare state faces threats from many quarters The burning public frustration amounts to a national security crisis which London addresses primarily through endless new legislation policies and strategies statements that create confusion rather than cohesion Short term fixes are not enough Real leadership and real solutions are urgently needed
