Climate Change Research at Universities Walter Leal Filho, 2017-06-02 This unique book provides a multidisciplinary review of current climate change research projects at universities around the globe offering perspectives from all of the natural and social sciences Numerous universities worldwide pursue state of the art research on climate change focussing on mitigation of its effects as well as human adaptation to it However the 2015 Paris 21st Conference of the Parties of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change UNFCCC COP 21 demonstrated that there is still much room for improvement in the role played by universities in international negotiations and decision making on climate change To date few scientific meetings have provided multidisciplinary perspectives on climate change in which researchers across the natural and social sciences could come together to exchange research findings and discuss methods relating to climate change mitigation and adaption studies As a result the published literature has also lacked a broad perspective This book fills that gap and is of interest to all researchers and policy makers concerned with global climate change regardless of their area of expertise

Multicampus University Systems Ishmael I. Munene, 2014-08-27 In the face of increasing social demand and cutbacks in state budgetary support universities in African countries are now turning towards a multicampus system strategy As African governments have adopted neoliberal education policies that place premium on entrepreneurialism profit making privatization and markets as drivers of university development a reshaping of the academic work and organizational framework have taken place However little is known about the impact of this paradigm shift on access quality and governance in higher education This book fills the void in research and academic knowledge about the impact of the emerging university configurations in Africa It analyzes the paradox surrounding the performance of multicampus university systems as avenues of broadening university access but whose structural success may be qualitatively contested This book offers a refreshing examination of the African multicampus university system from both an

African and global perspective It makes use of empirical data from Kenya collected during extensive fieldwork along with substantive library and documentary resources on the rest of the continents to fortify arguments and demonstrate important conclusions This allows for a comparative analysis of policies and strategies used in the establishment of campuses both within and beyond national boundaries in the continent and will be a welcome contribution to the existing repertoire on African universities
