inhabited by mostly female sex workers are understood as masculine spaces and positioned for and around male consumers. However, red light zones and public sex performances in both Thailand and Holland are being explored and visually consumed by female tourists in significant numbers. Their presence in red light districts and sexual venues is at odds with the ways in which sexual spaces have normally been positioned. Woman and Sex Tourism Landscapes explores female tourists' interactions with highly sexualized spaces and places in two very different contexts: the Netherlands and Thailand. Addressing this incongruence, this text explores the ways in which these spaces are constructed and examines the different relations that govern the management of and female tourist interactions with these liminal sexual zones. Ethnographic data collected in both countries suggests that far from being male-centred spaces, the red light districts and associated sexual entertainment venues are very much open to female tourists. Drawing on this research, the author argues that some women are indeed interested in exploring sexualized zones, challenging assumptions about women's involvements with sexual space. Thinking specifically about the visual nature of women's sexualized experiences, the analysis draws on a range of different theoretical understandings that address power, privilege and the gaze. An important contribution to a range of debates, this book will appeal to students and researchers in tourism, geography, sociology, gender studies and cultural theory.

Cross cultural dialogues in sacred space cultivate awareness of self and others Temples are everywhere in Chiang Mai filled with tourists as well as saffron robed monks of all ages The monks participate in daily urban life here as elsewhere in Thailand where Buddhism is promoted protected and valued as a tourist attraction Yet this mountain city offers more than a fleeting commodified tourist experience as the encounters between foreign visitors and Buddhist monks can have long lasting effects on both parties These religious contacts take place where economic motives missionary zeal and opportunities for cultural exchange coincide Brooke Schedneck incorporates fieldwork and interviews with student monks and tourists to examine the innovative ways that Thai Buddhist temples offer foreign visitors spaces for religious instruction and popular in person Monk Chat sessions in which tourists ask questions about Buddhism Religious Tourism in Northern Thailand also considers how Thai monks perceive other religions and cultures and how they represent their own religion when interacting with tourists resulting in a revealing study of how religious traditions adapt to an era of globalization The Portable Writer's
