From The Playground Of The Gods The Life And Art Of Bikky Sunazawa:

From the Playground of the Gods Chisato O. Dubreuil, 2004 Bikky Sunazawa's art was unknown in North America and relatively little known outside Hokkaido Japan when the Smithsonian opened its special Ainu exhibition in 1999. Conceived to explore the relationship of history, culture, and art of the Ainu people with other North Pacific native groups, the exhibition included a large section of contemporary Ainu sculpture, painting, graphic arts, and textile arts. The largest body of work was sculptures created by Bikky Sunazawa. This is the first English language book devoted to Bikky's life and the most complete presentation of his principal artworks. It is the most comprehensive treatment of the artist who became the pivot point in the development of modern Ainu fine art from the Preface by William W. Fitzhugh. Japan's Ainu Minority in Tokyo Mark K. Watson, 2014-03-14 This book is about the Ainu, the indigenous people of Japan living in and around Tokyo; it is therefore about what has been pushed to the margins of history. Customarily, anthropologists and public officials have represented Ainu issues and political affairs as limited to rural pockets of Hokkaido. Today, however, a significant proportion of the Ainu people live in and around major cities on the main island of Honshu, particularly Tokyo. Based on extensive original ethnographic research, this book explores this largely unknown diasporic aspect of Ainu life and society. Drawing from debates on place-based rights and urban indigeneity in the twenty-first century, the book engages with the experiences and collective struggles of Tokyo Ainu in seeking to promote a better understanding of their cultural and political identity and sense of community in the city. Looking in depth for the first time at the urban context of ritual performance, cultural transmission, and the construction of places or hubs of Ainu social activity, this book argues that recent government initiatives aimed at fostering a national Ainu policy will ultimately founder unless its architects are able to fully recognize the historical and social complexities of the urban Ainu experience. The Fabric of Indigeneity Ann-Elise LeWallen, 2016-10-01 In present-day Japan, Ainu women create spaces of cultural vitalization in which they can move between being Ainu through their natal and affinal relationships and actively becoming Ainu through their craftwork. They craft these spaces despite the specter of loss that haunts the efforts of former colonial subjects like Ainu to reconnect with their pasts. The author synthesizes ethnographic field research, museum and archival research, and participation in cultural revival and rights-based organizing to show how women craft Ainu and indigenous identities through clothwork and how they also fashion lived connections to ancestral values and lifestyles. She examines the connections between the transnational dialogue on global indigeneity and multiculturalism, material culture, and the social construction of gender and ethnicity in Japanese society and she proposes new directions for the study of settler colonialism and indigenous mobilization in other Asian and Pacific nations. Ainu of Japan Resisting the Suppression of Languages Susan Samata, 2024-12-12 This volume shows that by moving away from code models that foster restrictive perceptions of language as learned words and rules and towards an ecolinguistics capable of integrating with concepts of embodied cognition, it is possible to recognise a broad range of connections with a language.

from which an individual or community has become estranged Using the Ainu of Japan as an example and comparator this book reviews historical and contemporary suppression of languages as a means of or as a by-product of the suppression of their speakers Preservation of the Ainu language which had no written form has been central to official culture promotion programs but the language has steadily declined in use The Ainu experience has much in common with that of communities taken over and suppressed by oppressive forces in other countries and spans rural and urban contexts Susan Samata examines the historical social and ecolinguistic contexts of Ainu with particular emphasis on presentation and perception in daily life She also considers how aspects of ecolinguistic theory may be mapped onto museum practices television and cinema popular literature and the promotion of tourism These are then compared to the sociolinguistic situations of a selection of other languages and cultures in China North America and Scandinavia By highlighting points of similarity and dissimilarity Samata demonstrates the factors that operate in the suppression of people and their languages and suggests ways in which the perspective described may support resistance to suppression and assimilation not least in language teaching areas
