Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1968 Includes Part 1 Number 1 Books and Pamphlets Including Serials and Contributions to Periodicals January June The Problem of American Realism Michael Davitt Bell, 1993 Ever since William Dean Howells declared his realism war in the 1880s literary historians have regarded the rise of realism and naturalism as the great development in American post Civil War fiction Yet there are many problems with this generalization It is virtually impossible for example to extract from the novels and manifestoes of American writers of this period any consistent definitions of realism or naturalism as modes of literary representation Rather than seek common traits in widely divergent realist and naturalist literary works Michael Davitt Bell focuses here on the role that these terms played in the social and literary discourse of the 1880s and 1890s Bell argues that in America realism and naturalism never achieved the sort of theoretical rigor that they did in European literary debate Instead the function of these ideas in America was less aesthetic than ideological promoting as reality a version of social normalcy based on radically anti literary and heavily gendered assumptions What effects Bell asks did ideas about realism and naturalism have on writers who embraced and resisted them To answer this question he devotes separate chapters to the work of Howells and Frank Norris the principal American advocates of realism and naturalism in the 1880s and 1890s Mark Twain Henry James Stephen Crane Theodore Dreiser and Sarah Orne Jewett Bell reveals that a chief function of claiming to be a realist or a naturalist was to provide assurance that one was a real man rather than an effeminate artist Since the 1880s Bell asserts all serious American fiction writers have had to contend with this problematic conception of literary realism The true story of the transformation of American fiction after the Civil War is the history of this contention a history of individual accommodations evasions holding actions and occasional triumphs

A Companion to Gabriel García Márquez Raymond L. Williams, 2010 This book offers discussion and analysis of the subtle writing of Nobel Laureate Gabriel García Márquez a traditionalist who draws from classic Western texts a Modernist committed to modernizing the conservative literary tradition in Colombia and Latin America an internationally recognized major writer of the 1960s Boom the key figure in popularizing what has been called magic realism and finally a Modernist who has occasionally engaged in some of the strategies of the postmodern The author demonstrates that García Márquez is above all a committed and highly accomplished Modernist fiction writer who has successfully synthesized his political vision in his writing and absorbed a vast array of cultural and literary traditions Drawing on García Márquez's interviews with Williams and others over the years the book also explores the importance of the non literary the presence of oral tradition and the visual arts thus providing a more complete insight into García Márquez's strategies as a Modernist with heterogeneous aesthetic interests as well as an understanding of his social and political preoccupations

American Fiction in the Cold War Thomas H. Schaub, 1991 In American Fiction in the Cold War Thomas Hill Schaub makes it clear that Trilling's summary was in itself a mythic reconstruction a prominent example of the way liberal writers in the late 1940s and 1950s came to terms with their political past Schaub's book brilliantly analyzes their efforts to reshape an old liberalism alleged to hold naively optimistic views of human nature scientific reason and social progress into a new skeptical liberalism that recognized the persistence of human evil the fragility of reason and the ambiguity of moral decision Most important as American Fiction in the Cold War demonstrates these liberal reassessments of history politics human nature and destiny what Schaub calls the liberal narrative mediated the critical and imaginative production of the literary community after World War II Schaub shows that the elements of this narrative are visible in a wide spectrum of cultural narratives in American history political philosophy and social criticism during the Cold War era His analysis of the dominant critical communities of the late 1940s led by critics such as Lionel Trilling and Irving Howe Cleanth Brooks and Allen Tate recovers the political meanings embedded within their debates over the nature of literary realism the definition of the novel and speculations on its death In the second part of his study Schaub turns to Ralph Ellison Flannery O'Connor Norman Mailer and John Barth His readings of their fiction isolate the political and cultural content of works often faulted for their apparent efforts to transcend social history Reviewing John Barth's End of the Road for example he shows the politics of culture concealed within what seems to be a philosophical narrative In novel after novel he demonstrates the liberal narrative is operating from within tuning and steering the direction of the plot and the creation of the character Schaub's penetrating exploration of the relationship between U.S. political and social thought and the literary consciousness in the early postwar years will be of interest to intellectual historians and to students of American literary culture

Self-conscious Form in Modern American Drama Daniel M.
