twentieth centuries It assesses their efficacy within a context of a growing demand for labour resulting from an expanding international economy and European colonisation The essays show that in applying definitions of slavery derived from the American model European agents in the region failed to detect or deliberately ignored other forms of slavery and as a result the abolitionist impulse was only partly successful with the slave trade still continuing today in many parts of the Indian Ocean World

Feeding Globalization Jane Hooper, 2017-05-15 Between 1600 and 1800 the promise of fresh food attracted more than seven hundred English French and Dutch vessels to Madagascar Throughout this period European ships spent months at sea in the Atlantic and Indian Oceans but until now scholars have not fully examined how crews were fed during these long voyages Without sustenance from Madagascar European traders would have struggled to transport silver to Asia and spices back to Europe Colonies in Mozambique Mauritius and at the Cape relied upon frequent imports from Madagascar to feed settlers and slaves In Feeding Globalization Jane Hooper draws on challenging and previously untapped sources to analyze Madagascar s role in provisioning European trading networks within and ultimately beyond the Indian Ocean The sale of food from the island not only shaped trade routes and colonial efforts but also encouraged political centralization and the slave trade in Madagascar Malagasy people played an essential role in supporting European global commerce with far reaching effects on their communities Feeding Globalization reshapes our understanding of Indian Ocean and global history by insisting historians should pay attention to the role that food played in supporting other exchanges

Reinterpreting Indian Ocean Worlds Stefan C. A. Halikowski Smith, 2011-05-25 The Indian Ocean World was an idea borne out by researchers in economic history and trade in the 1980s in response to the compartmentalization of specific area studies within the wider rubric of Asian civilisations and culture Professor Kirti N Chaudhuri's books Trading World of Asia and the English East India Company 1978 and then Trade and Civilization in the Indian Ocean 1985 figured amongst the forefront of this new movement in historical thinking undertaking detailed historical analysis first of the English East India Company and then a comparative cultural history of Asian material life and civilisation Today historians continue to hold on to the idea of an Indian Ocean world although studies now follow a number of different threads from themes like linguistics and creolization to the seeds of national consciousness By presenting a number of studies here gathered into the themes of Intermixing The World of Trade and Colonial Paths it is hoped we can render tribute to one of the outstanding historians in this field and reflect the plenitude of current research in this subject area

Channelling Mobilities Valeska Huber, 2013-08-01 The history of globalisation is usually told as a history of shortening distances and acceleration of the flows of people goods and ideas Channelling Mobilities refines this picture by looking at a wide variety of mobile people passing through the region of the Suez Canal a global shortcut opened in 1869 As an empirical contribution to global history the book asks how the passage between Europe and Asia and Africa was perceived staged and controlled from the opening of the Canal to the First World War arguing that this period was neither an era of unhampered acceleration nor one of hardening borders and increasing controls Instead it was characterised by the channelling of mobilities through the differentiation regulation and bureaucratisation of movement Telling the stories of tourists troops workers pilgrims stowaways caravans dhow skippers and others the book reveals the complicated entanglements of empires internationalist initiatives and private companies
