Economic Change and Wellbeing Fabio D'Orlando, Francesco Ferrante, Albertina Oliverio, 2021-09-01 Technological progress and globalization have generated indisputable benefits but also relevant costs such as growing economic inequality economic fluctuations and financial instability Mainstream economics has usually considered these costs as temporary evenly distributed and more than compensated by the gains of the phases of economic expansion In this book which focuses mainly though not only on the labor market the authors contend that the major costs of the intensified process of creative destruction through which economic change proceeded have been ignored and the benefits overrated thus incorrectly estimating the net impact of economic growth on subjective wellbeing The book argues that the positive consequences of economic change and globalization may not compensate for the negatives because psychological losses are felt more strongly than gains due to loss aversion and the costs are unequally distributed those on low incomes disproportionately suffer more The result is an overall reduction in wellbeing and therefore appropriate policies are necessary to allow more people to enjoy the benefits of technological progress without suffering the costs The authors develop a comprehensive framework in which the socio psychological context and educational level of a community determine the most suitable policies both for the short and for the long run The book makes an invaluable contribution to the literature on economic growth and development labor economics the economics of wellbeing and applications of behavioral economics The readers that may be interested in this book are economists and other social scientists but also general readers since the analysis is maintained simple and accessible University teachers can use the book for courses on economic growth and development on labor economics on the economics of human capital on the economics of wellbeing and on applications of behavioral economics

Smart Organizations in Industry 5.0 Sebastian Saniuk, Sandra Grabowska, Anna Adamik, 2024-12-31. The Fourth Industrial Revolution means the widespread digitization of economic processes using more economical and efficient production technologies. Orientation towards productivity, flexibility, and low production costs results in a slow process of dehumanization of industry and focus only on implementing digital technologies of Industry 4.0. A natural consequence of this trend is the concern of workers, governments, and societies about new challenges and the role of humans in industry and the economy. The hope is the emergence of a new industry concept proposed by the European Commission that expands the features of the existing Industry 4.0 concept to include human-centric, environmental, and resilience aspects in smart organizations. Industry 5.0 is an excellent alternative to the development of today's digital and dehumanized world, and this book presents challenges and priority directions for smart organizations in an environment shaped by the pillars of Industry 5.0. This research volume discusses the development of technologies that support human-oriented work systems, sustainable production, and system resilience in intelligent organizations. It presents an educational challenge for universities and vocational schools in preparing employees for intelligent organizations and will be of interest to researchers, academics, policymakers, and students in the fields of organizational studies, knowledge management, and the digital economy.
