Entrepreneurship in a Regional Context Michael Fritsch,David Storey,2017-08-17 Enterprise and entrepreneurship is of strong interest to policy makers because new and small firms can be a key contributor to job and wealth creation However this contribution varies spatially with some areas in a country having new firm formation rates that are up to three or four times higher than others The vast majority of these new firms begin in the geographical area in which the founder lives works or was born emphasising that entrepreneurship is a local event The book documents a diversity of research approaches to examining the regional determinants of entrepreneurship in countries as contrasting as India and Sweden The Editors call is for scholars to better understand the long run factors that influence enterprise at the local and regional level For policy makers the Editors challenge is for them to be much clearer about the targets for their policies Is it new firms new jobs productivity and does it matter where these targets are delivered This book was published as a special issue of Regional Studies The American Economist ,2004
