Frontiers in Water Resource Economics Renan-Ulrich Goetz, Dolores Berga, 2006-03-09 Most of the books published previously in the field of water resource economics focus on particular aspects of water economics such as institutions pricing or water markets but none of them have given particular attention to methodological questions However the applied methodology within economic research has made some remarkable advances over the last 10-20 years Some of these advances are of particular interest to the field of water economics Therefore we think that a book that focusing on methodological advances within the field of water resource economics and showing how these advances can be applied in economic analysis of water issues makes a nice complement to the existing literature in this field We identified five areas where we consider the methodological advances to be of particular importance 1 asymmetric information and game theory 2 uncertainty 3 space 4 water quality and 5 production and technology adoption The selected papers for the book fall entirely within these categories The book Frontiers in Water Resource Economics draws to a great extent on papers which were presented at the 7 Conference of the International Water and Resource Economics Consortium June 3-5 2001 held in Girona Catalonia Spain This conference was jointly organized with the 4 Conference of Environmental and Resource Economics by the Department of Economics University of Girona

The Economics of Water Demands Steven Renzetti, 2012-12-06 This book arose out of a paper that I wrote for the World Bank at the request of Ariel Dinar the editor for the series in which this volume appears I began that paper by pointing to the growing importance of demand side considerations in water resources The provision of potable water is one of government's oldest functions with evidence of this activity stretching back thousands of years During much of that time water demands were taken as exogenously given and the principle task of authorities was defined as an engineering one how to supply a given quantity of water at least cost In recent years however concerns have arisen from observations of excessive water use degraded water quality and continued inadequate service for many especially the very poor As a result of these and other concerns there is a growing effort to view water resource allocation from a perspective that incorporates consumers preferences along with supply constraints into management plans Renzetti 2000 p 123 The purpose of this volume is to examine in greater detail than was possible in that article what is known regarding the economic characteristics of the demand for water Thus this book is meant to be an extended critical review of the state of the art

Determining the Economic Value of Water Robert A. Young, John B. Loomis, 2014-07-23 Water provides benefits as a commodity for agriculture industry and households and as a public good such as fisheries habitat water quality and recreational use To aid in cost benefit analysis under conditions where market determined price signals are usually unavailable economists have developed a range of alternative valuation methods for measuring economic benefits This volume provides the most comprehensive exposition to date of the application of economic valuation methods to proposed water resources investments and policies It provides a conceptual framework for valuation of both commodity and public good uses of water addressing non market valuation techniques appropriate to measuring public benefits including water quality improvement recreation and fish habitat enhancement The book describes the various measurement methods illustrates how they are applied in practice and discusses their strengths limitations and appropriate roles In this second edition all chapters have been thoroughly updated and in particular the coverage of water markets and valuation of ecosystem services from water has been expanded Robert Young author of the 2005 edition has been joined for this new edition by John Loomis who brings additional expertise on ecosystem services and the environmental economics of water for recreational and other public good uses of water

Agricultural Biodiversity and Biotechnology in Economic Development Joseph Cooper,Leslie Lipper,David Zilberman,2006-05-27 The topics addressed in this book are of vital importance to the survival of humankind Agricultural biodiversity encompassing genetic diversity as well as human knowledge is the base upon which agricultural production has been built and protecting this resource is critical to ensuring the capacity of current and future generations to adapt to unforeseen challenges Agricultural biodiversity underpins the productivity of all agricultural systems and is particularly important for poor and food insecure farmers who maintain highly diverse production systems in response to the marginal and risky production conditions they operate under Understanding the importance of agricultural biodiversity in the livelihoods of the food insecure and enhancing its performance through the use of a variety of tools including biotechnology is a critically important issue in the world today where over 800 million people have insufficient food to meet minimum needs A strong theme that runs throughout the book is the importance of good public policy interventions to promote the provision of public goods associated with agricultural biodiversity conservation and directing biotechnology development to meet the needs of the poor The book s primary innovation is that it describes the relationship between biotechnology and plant genetic diversity and puts these in the context of agricultural development Both the conservation of plant genetic diversity and agricultural biotechnology have received extensive examination but the linkages between the two have not despite the apparently obvious relationship between the two

Payment for Environmental Services in Agricultural Landscapes Leslie Lipper,Takumi Sakuyama,Randy Stringer,David Zilberman,2009-03-21 In recent years development policy has responded to an increasing concern about natural resource degradation by setting up innovative payment for environmental services PES programs in developing countries PES programs use market and institutional incentives in order to meet both environmental and poverty alleviation objectives However their optimal design implications for the rural poor and how these initiatives integrate into international treaties on global warming and biodiversity loss are still being discussed This book addresses these issues by scrutinizing analytical tools providing policy insights and stimulating debate on linkages between poverty alleviation and environmental protection In particular it turns attention towards the role of environmental services in agricultural landscapes as they provide a living for many poor in developing countries It serves as a valuable reference for academics and students in various disciplines as well as for policy makers and advisors This book is a co publication between Springer and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations Regulating Agricultural Biotechnology Richard E. Just, Julian M. Alston, David Zilberman, 2006-12-26 This book presents the first thorough economic analysis of current agricultural biotechnology regulation The contributors most of whom are agricultural economists working either in universities or NGOs address issues such as commercial pesticides the costs of approving new products liability benefits consumer acceptance regulation and its impacts transgenic crops social welfare implications and biosafety Policy Reforms and Agriculture Development in Central Asia Sandjar Djalalov, Suresh Chandra Babu, 2006-07-02 Achieving sustainable agricultural development is at the forefront of the poverty reduction objective of the Central Asian republics Kazakhstan the Kyrgyz Republic Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan Since independence the countries of the Central Asian region have undergone a series of transition from centrally planned economies to a more market oriented system Wide ranging policy reforms have been implemented although in varying degrees in the five Central Asian countries Despite great efforts by the countries and the external advice and efforts of international agencies to help them to follow a dynamic growth path the progress in policy reforms has been frustratingly slow Generating momentum to reorient the approach and the sequencing of policy reform packages will require rethinking of the policy reform process This is particularly so in the food agriculture and natural resource sectors This further requires improved understanding among the policymakers donors and international agencies of the impact of policy alternatives so that policy reforms and the speed with which they have been implemented are consistent with the objectives and the social and political realities of individual countries in the region Involving the local policy research community in identifying critical issues and challenges setting priorities among them for food and agricultural and natural resource policy research and analysis and implementing joint research studies is the best way to generate knowledge on the impact of policy reforms and to increase ownership of policy design and implementation
