Biodiversity, Communities and Climate Change Chandra Prakash Kala, Chandra Shekhar Silori, 2013-01-01 Biodiversity conservation and sustainable use of natural resources has remained one of the key challenges for development agencies and concerned stakeholders for decades together. The huge threat of climate change has only added to this complexity. In this context, the present book Biodiversity, Community and Climate Change is designed to help in guiding the various principles of biodiversity conservation, effects of climate change, and role of communities at various levels and landscapes. A total of 19 chapters are covered in this book, and they encompass a wide range of topics including tools of biodiversity assessment ranging from conventional ecological and social survey methods to the use of latest technology such as Geographical Information System (GIS) and remote sensing.

Migration, Development and Social Change in the Himalayas Madleina Daehnhardt, 2019-07-17 This book teases out the reasons for and the socio-economic impacts of different types of migration on contemporary rural households and individuals. The author creatively depicts the dynamic microcosm of one village in the North Indian Kumaun Himalayas near the border with Chinese Tibet, giving voice to the life stories of a range of migrants. Through this ethnography, migration is revealed as a fundamental part of the multifaceted 21st-century changes which the village is experiencing. From elderly women to unemployed men, young farm women and local children, the book demonstrates how village life is continually constituted socially and economically by overlapping migration patterns, including outmigration, return migration, and even non-migration. Extending the argument, the author demonstrates that the village microcosm is linked to many other villages, which are microcosms in their own right as well as in relation to the main village across a spatial hierarchy. The theoretical implications of the study are teased out to inform our understanding of rural-urban migration trends and impacts more generally, and as such, the book will be of interest to researchers of the South Asian region but also of internal migration in the global context.

Farming Systems and Sustainable Agriculture in the Himalaya Vishwambhar Prasad Sati, 2024-08-01 The farming system in the Central Himalayan Region is distinctive and unique, mainly focusing on the cultivation of traditional subsistence cereal crops. The agrobiodiversity in this region is rich, with the Central Himalaya growing numerous cultivars and crop races. The practice of cultivating many crops or cultivars in a single field is known as the Barahnaja System. Another peculiar system is the Sar-Sari system, where different crops grow in the two Sars during the same seasons, with one Sar left fallow for six months while the other grows crops. This century-old farming method involves plowing fields with oxen and using organic manure to enhance crop production and productivity. However, recent changes have been observed in the farming systems. The area under traditionally growing millets is declining. In river valleys and middle altitudes, there is a recent trend towards cultivating paddy and wheat. Unfortunately, the cultivation of temperate fruits, apple and citrus, has seen a decline in terms of area, production, and productivity. Various factors are influencing farming systems in the Central Himalaya, such as high climate variability and change, decreasing crop production and productivity, evolving food habits, and out-migration. The book contains 12 chapters illustrating introduction, land use, and land
