An Iron Age and Roman Republican Settlement on Botromagno, Gravina Di Puglia Alastair Small, 1992 The Making of a Roman Imperial Estate: Archaeology in the Vicus at Vagnari, Puglia Maureen Carroll, 2022-05-12 Excavation reports and analysis of material remains from Vagnari southeast Italy facilitate a detailed phasing of a rural settlement both in the late Republican period when it was established on land leased from the Roman state and later when it became the hub vicus of a vast agricultural estate owned by the emperor himself Butrint 6: Excavations on the Vrina Plain Paul Reynolds, 2019-12-19 Butrint 6 describes the excavations carried out on the Vrina Plain by the Butrint Foundation from 2002 2007 Lying just to the south of the ancient port city of Butrint these excavations have revealed a 1 300 year long story of a changing community that began in the 1st century AD one which not only played its part in shaping the city of Butrint but also in how the city interacted and at times reacted to the changing political economic and cultural situations occurring across the Mediterranean World over this period Volume III discusses the Roman and Late Antique pottery from the Vrina Plain excavations This detailed study of the ceramics follows the archaeological sequence recovered from the excavations in chronological order and provides a comprehensive and in depth review of the pottery context by context offering an important insight into the supply as well as typology of local and imported pottery available to the inhabitants of the Vrina Plain during this period This is followed by a discussion on how the pottery trends found on the Vrina Plain relate to that of other sites in Butrint both within the town Triconch Palace the Forum and outside Vrina Plain training school villa excavations the villa of Diaporit The volume also presents an overview of some of the principal typological developments found across Butrint so as to allow the reader to place the Vrina finds in context including a discussion of a number of key contexts from the Forum as well as the findings from thin section petrology of some of the ceramics Writing Matters Ruth Whitehouse, 2024-09-05 The epigraphy of 1st millennium BCE Italy has been studied for many years but these studies have largely concentrated on the languages encoded in the inscriptions and their semantic meanings This book takes a more holistic approach that looks not only at content but also the archaeological contexts of the inscriptions and the materiality of their supports the artefacts and monuments on which the inscriptions occur The first writing in Italy was not a local invention but was introduced by the Phoenicians and Greeks in the 9th 8th centuries BCE It was taken up by number of indigenous communities over the subsequent centuries to write their own languages before these were eventually submerged by the spread of Latin In a series of theoretical methodological and interpretative essays Ruth Whitehouse explores what can be learned about how writing was used by these communities and what it meant to them The bodies of data considered relate to Venetic and Raetic the northeast Lepontic the northwest Messapic the southeast and Etruscan west central Italy extending also into Campania in the south and the Po plain in the north While not a comprehensive survey there are enough different groups to allow a comparative approach to be adopted Analysis of the datasets is able to reveal the similarities and differences between them as well as identify features that were widespread in 1st millennium BCE Italy and others that were more idiosyncratic and specific to particular cultural groups Placing materiality at the centre of study allows a reconsideration of the roles writing played in the lives of the individuals and groups who occupied Italy in the 1st millennium BCE

Mediterranean Valley Graeme Barker, 1995-11-01 Integrating the techniques of archaeology history and geography this book traces the history of human settlement in the Biferno Valley from early prehistory to the present century It also covers the parallel story of landscape development showing that the two have to be understood together It argues for the importance of human settlement rather than climate as is often argued in shaping the Mediterranean landscape This book provides an interdisciplinary study of a restricted region but about an important theme the relationship between people and landscape in the past and what we can learn from it for the future In the Footsteps of the Etruscans Graeme Barker, Tom Rasmussen, 2023-10-12 In the Footsteps of the Etruscans describes the archaeology of the countryside within a ten km radius of the small town of Tuscania near Rome throwing light on the unrecorded lives of the generations of farmers and shepherds who have lived there What was the character of prehistoric settlement prior to Etruscan urbanization How did urbanization shape the lives of the ordinary Etruscans working the land hardly ever addressed in Etruscan archaeology What was the impact on these people of being absorbed into the expanding Roman empire and its globalised economic structures How did the empire's collapse and the subsequent emergence of the nucleated medieval village affect Tuscania's rural population The project s 7500 year archaeological history from the first farmers to those grappling with globalisation today contributes eloquently to our understanding of how Mediterranean peoples have constantly shaped their landscape and been shaped by it Symposium, Community and Cultural Exchange in Archaic Sicily and South Italy Adam Thomas

Rabinowitz,2004 The Archaeology of South-East Italy in the First Millennium BC Douwe Yntema,2025-10-01 Synthesizing some 30 years of archaeological research in south east Italy this book discusses a millennium that witnessed breathtaking changes the first millennium BC In nine to ten centuries the Mediterranean societies changed from a great variety of mostly small entities of predominantly tribal nature into the enormous state currently indicated as the Roman Empire This volume is a case study discussing the pathway to complexity of one of the regions that contributed to the formation of this large state south east Italy It highlights how initially small groups developed into complex societies how and why these adapted to increasingly wide horizons and how and why Italic groups and migrants from the eastern Mediterranean interacted and created entirely new social economic cultural and physical landscapes This synthesis is based on research carried out by many Italian archaeologists and by research groups from quite a variety of other countries Amsterdam Archaeological Studies is a series devoted to the study of past human societies from the prehistory up into modern times primarily based on the study of archaeological remains The series will include excavation reports of modern fieldwork studies of categories of material culture and synthesising studies with broader images of past societies thereby contributing to the theoretical and methodological debates in archaeology Archaeology on the Apulian - Lucanian Border Alastair Small,Carola

Small,2022-05-26 The broad valley of the Bradano river and its tributary the Basentello separates the Apennine mountains in Lucania from the limestone plateau of the Murge in Apulia in southeast Italy This book aims to explain how the pattern of settlement and land use changed in the valley over the whole period from the Neolithic to the late medieval San Vincenzo al Volturno. 3 : 2. The finds from the 1980 - 86 excavations : illustrations John Mitchell,Inge Lyse Hansen,2001 San Vincenzo Al Volturno: The finds from the 1980-86 excavations (2 v.) v.1: Text. v. 2: Illustrations Richard Hodges,2001

Moormann, 1995 Dutch excavations between 1984 1990 at localit  S Stefano in the centre of Valesio the Brindisi region have revealed the remains of the settlement from the pre Roman through the Medieval period This book reports on the excavations of the Imperial road station at Valesio mutatio Valentia including a bath building with stables The reconstruction of the complex is preceded by a detailed description of the excavated remains The Medieval casale that was built into the baths is also discussed The architectural section is followed by chapters on the ceramics and other finds of the Imperial and Medieval periods from S Stefano area

The Biferno Valley Survey Graeme Barker, 1995 Historians geographers and archaeologists have long debated the changing relationship between people and landscape in the Mediterranean What was this relationship like in the past and what can we learn from it for the future The present study is the companion volume to A Mediterranean Valley Landscape Archaeology and Annales History in the Biferno Valley and together they make up the largest and most detailed interdisciplinary case study in Mediterranean landscape archaeology and history A Mediterranean Valley documents the long term landscape history of the Biferno Valley in central southern Italy as it has been pieced together by a team of archaeologists geographers and historians The Biferno Valley Survey presents the specialist supporting data collected by the survey team materials collected full details of the sites located observations made in the field and their interpretation Archaeologists have a professional obligation to make their data accessible to other archaeologists and not simply present their conclusions Unlike historians they cannot simply refer their readers to the library or archive which they have consulted Archaeologists have an obligation to publish the data on which their conclusions are based because the research questions posed by a project determine the methodologies applied and the kind of data collected A Mediterranean Valley and The Biferno Valley Survey together set a new standard in the publication of Mediterranean landscape archaeology and are designed to make the results of this important project accessible to both general reader and speicalist alike
