New, 2019-11-13 Australia's varied grasslands have suffered massive losses and changes since European settlement and those changes continue under increasingly intensive human pressures for development and agricultural production. The values of native grasslands for conservation of endemic native biodiversity both flora and fauna have led to strong interests in the protection of remaining fragments especially near urban centres and documentation of the insects and other inhabitants of grasslands spanning tropical to cool temperate parts of the country. Attention to conservation of grassland insects in Australia is relatively recent but it is increasingly apparent that grasslands harbour many localised and ecologically specialised endemic species. Their conservation necessarily advances from very incomplete documentation and draws heavily on lessons from the far better documented grasslands elsewhere most notably in the northern hemisphere and undertaken over far longer periods. From those cases and the extensive background to grassland management to harmonise conservation with production and amenity values through honing use of processes such as grazing mowing and fire the needs and priorities for Australia can become clearer together with needs for grassland restoration at a variety of scales. This book is a broad overview of conservation needs of grassland insects in Australia drawing on the background provided elsewhere in the world on the responses to disturbances and the ecological importance of some key insect groups notably Orthoptera Hemiptera and Lepidoptera to suggest how insect conservation in native pastoral and urban grasslands may be advanced. The substantial references given for each chapter facilitate entry for non entomologist grassland managers and stewards to appreciate the diversity and importance of Australia's grassland insects their vulnerabilities to changes and the possibilities for conserving them and the wider ecological roles in which they participate.

Flammable Australia Ross A.

Bradstock, Jann E. Williams, Malcolm A. Gill, 2002. Fire is pivotal to the functioning of ecosystems in Australia affecting the distribution and abundance of the continent's unique and highly diverse range of plants and animals. Conservation of this natural biodiversity therefore requires a good understanding of scientific processes involved in the action of fire on the landscape. This book provides an up to date synthesis of current knowledge in this area and its application in contemporary land management. Central to the discussion is an exploration of the concept of the fire regime and its interactions with biodiversity.

Sports Turf & Amenity Grasses David Aldous, Ian H. Chivers, 2002. A key is provided to identify grasses easily using diagrams. Meticulously drawn illustrations provide an invaluable identification aid. This reference work will be essential reading for turf professionals horticulture students and those working with public land.

BOOK COVER

The Grass Crop M. Jones, 2013-03-07. Grass is a very important world crop. In some countries for example the UK Australia and New Zealand animal products from grassland make a greater contribution to the value of agricultural production than does any other crop. Yet research being undertaken to further our understanding of the factors affecting the growth and productivity of grasslands has trailed in the shadow of the determined efforts made to improve our knowledge of cereals and to a somewhat lesser extent legumes. However in spite of its low profile grassland research has resulted in considerable advances in our knowledge in the last 20 years and we feel that this book provides a timely opportunity to bring together some of this work in a review of what is primarily the ecophysiology of the temperate grass crop Unlike other crops grown for their grain or vegetative parts grass and grassland products are used almost entirely for the feeding of ruminant animals the interaction of the sward and the animal thus adds an extra dimension to investigations of the productivity of grassland No one author could adequately encompass the breadth of work covered in the book Acknowledged experts have therefore been selected as contributors to provide an up to date review of their own specialized areas Whilst multi author texts can cause problems of lack of uniformity of approach each contributor has been made aware of the contents of the other chapters in an attempt both to provide continuity and to prevent glaring overlaps Australian Systematic Botany ,2003 XX

International Grassland Conference: Offered papers F.P. O'Mara,R.J. Wilkins,L. 't Mannetje,D.K. Lovett,P.A.M. Rogers,T.M. Boland,2023-08-28 This book contains a compilation of offered papers presented at the main congress of the XX International Grassland Congress held in University College Dublin Ireland from 26 June to 1 July 2005 It is complemented by six other books arising from the XX IGC as listed on the back cover the book of invited papers from the main congress and five books containing the proceedings of five satellite workshops held immediately after the main congress at locations in the UK and Ireland Aberystwyth Belfast Cork Glasgow and Oxford The workshops were designed to facilitate more in depth presentations and discussions on more specialised topics of worldwide significance The main congress brought together scientists from many disciplines policy makers consultants and producers involved directly in grass production and utilisation as well as people in associated industries They discussed issues around the theme of the congress Grasslands a Global Resource The congress programme was organised around three main thematic areas Efficient Production from Grassland Grassland and the Environment Delivering the Benefits from Grassland On the Ecology of Australia's Arid Zone Hans

Lambers,2018-08-21 This book will appeal to an international audience as well as be irresistible to local readers Anyone working or with an interest in Australia s arid zone should need ready access to this book There is no equivalent publication out there at the moment and this book has many authoritative chapters richly illustrated with colourful material The challenge of this book was to assemble current knowledge on particular topics and concepts and principles relating to them It is also forward looking by identifying where there are gaps or inadequacies in knowledge and where future research needs to be directed Lead authors were encouraged to take such an approach they had the opportunity to involve any author they considered appropriate The final product shouldbe a fabulous resource also for university courses especially at MSc level

Natural Grasslands R.T. Coupland,1993-02-01 This volume is concerned with those parts of the earth s surface where semiarid to subhumid climate determines that the potential vegetation is characterized by a more or less continuous layer of grasses and other associated herbs These grasslands have been modified to a very considerable degree by the activities of man and his domesticated animals The authors of the various chapters have evaluated the effect of these stresses in modifying ecosystem structure and activities of organisms The book provides an intensively referenced and indexed synthesis and review of knowledge concerning the natural grasslands of the world in as uniform a style as possible Because of its length it is published in two parts The first part deals with the grasslands of the Western Hemisphere and the Eastern Hemisphere and the resum compose this second volume Competition and Succession in Pastures P. G. Tow,Alec Lazenby,2000-12-01 This book describes how competition between plant species and succession in plant ecosystems operate in grasslands and grazed pastures both natural and sown It discusses how competition both affects botanical structure productivity and persistence of pastures and is itself regulated by biological environmental and management factors such as grazing animals The book also examines the ways in which competition and succession are analysed evaluated and measured and brings to the agricultural arena the considerable progress made in understanding the principles of competition from theoretical and experimental ecology Climate Change Juan A. Blanco,Houshang Kheradmand,2011-09-06 This book provides an interdisciplinary view of how to prepare the ecological and socio economic systems to the reality of climate change Scientifically sound tools are needed to predict its effects on regional rather than global scales as it is the level at which socio economic plans are designed and natural ecosystem reacts The first section of this book describes a series of methods and models to downscale the global predictions of climate change estimate its effects on biophysical systems and monitor the changes as they occur To reduce the magnitude of these changes new ways of economic activity must be implemented The second section of this book explores different options to reduce greenhouse emissions from activities such as forestry industry and urban development However it is becoming increasingly clear that climate change can be minimized but not avoided and therefore the socio economic systems around the world will have to adapt to the new conditions to reduce the adverse impacts to the minimum The last section of this book explores some options for adaptation Australian Journal of Botany ,2007
