GREASY COVE RACETRACK

In the valley 500 yards north were held many kinds of frontier diversions, including racing on a half-mile semicircular track.
Here, in 1788, Andrew Jackson, then 21 years old, rode his horse in a match race against a horse belonging to Col. Robert Love, ridden by a professional jockey. Jackson lost.

Two Worlds in the Tennessee Mountains David C. Hsiung, 2021-12-14 Most Americans know Appalachia through stereotyped images moonshine and handicrafts poverty and illiteracy rugged terrain and isolated mountaineers Historian David Hsiung maintains that in order to understand the origins of such stereotypes we must look critically at their underlying concepts especially those of isolation and community Hsiung focuses on the mountainous area of upper East Tennessee tracing this area's development from the first settlement in the eighteenth century to the eve of the Civil War Through his examination he identifies the different ways in which the region's inhabitants were connected to or separated from other peoples and places Using an interdisciplinary framework he analyzes geographical and sociocultural isolation from a number of perspectives including transportation networks changing economy population movement and topography This provocative work will stimulate future studies of early Appalachia and serve as a model for the analysis of regional cultures
