Great Australian Bite:

Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature Helen Frank, 2014-04-08 Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature offers a detailed and innovative model of analysis for examining the complexities of translating children's literature and sheds light on the interpretive choices at work in moving texts from one culture to another. The core of the study addresses the issue of how images of a nation, locale or country are constructed in translated children's literature with the translation of Australian children's fiction into French serving as a case study. Issues examined include the selection of books for translation, the relationship between children's books and the national and international publishing industry, the packaging of translations and the importance of titles, blurbs and covers, the linguistic and stylistic features specific to translating for children, intertextual references, the function of the translation in the target culture, didactic and pedagogical aims, euphemistic language and explicitation and literariness in translated texts. The findings of the case study suggest that the most common constructs of Australia in French translations reveal a preponderance of traditional Eurocentric signifiers that identify Australia with the outback, the antipodes, the exotic, the wild, the unknown, the void, the end of the world, the young and innocent nation and the Far West. Contemporary signifiers that construct Australia as urban, multicultural, Aboriginal, worldly and inharmonious are seriously under-represented. The study also shows that French translations are conventional, conservative and didactic, showing preference for an exotic rather than local specificity with systematic manipulation of Australian referents betraying a perception of Australia as antipodean, rural, exoticism. The significance of the study lies in underscoring the manner in which a given culture is constructed in another cultural milieu, especially through translated children's literature. Australian Triple Links, 1925 Cats and Cathedrals Patrick Boniface, 2006-03

Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, 1986 Terror Down Under Daniel Best, 2023-07-27 In 1948 the Australian government banned the production, importation and exhibition of horror films in a move to appease religious communities and entertainment watchdogs. Drawing upon previously unseen government documents, private letters and contemporary newspaper accounts, this book is the first to extensively cover the history of censorship and the early production of horror movies in Australia. Beginning its examination in the late 19th century, the book documents the earliest horror films like Georges Méliès' The Haunted Castle (1896) and how Australians enjoyed such films before the ban. The book then explains how certain imports like 1954's Creature from the Black Lagoon were able to circumvent the ban while others were not. It also reveals how Australian television, though similarly impacted by government censorship, was occasionally able to broadcast films technically banned from cinematic release. The work concludes with a look at the first Australian horror films produced after the ban was formally lifted in 1969, like Terry Bourke's Night of Fear (1973). The Funny Life of Sharks James Campbell, 2020-06-11 A hilarious book from bestselling author and stand-up comic James Campbell, who has visited over 3,000 primary schools to tell stories and encourage children to write their own.

Linton,2018-11-13 A story of a life well lived a man who grew to manhood believing he was an Irish Catholic but in fact was a German Jew His story is told around his many achievements It is not a pretty story there is murder adultery rape of an innocent and his struggle when he went to Sydney to become an SP bookie where he just managed to stay above the violent criminal element that ruled the city will keep you turning pages But through it all it was his lifelong search for his Jewish father and his almost frenetic wish for a son of his own that almost broke his spirit sending him on a downward destructive path into alcoholism and cruelty Then the Second World War erupted and he found himself in the most terrifying and brutal encounter he had ever witnessed But it also gave him a love that was all consuming a love story that will break the reader s heart as he struggled with the concept of loving two women a situation that placed him in a no win situation But he was a soldier of war and he covered himself with glory in the hot arid deserts of North Africa where he became a hero of sorts But nothing is easy in life least of all war and he soon found himself fighting every day just to stay alive to hopefully return to his love But again tragedy strikes at him viciously almost destroying his sanity He struggles against the terrifying concept of being placed in a lunatic asylum for the insane but help arrives for him in the form of a young American doctor and he is returned to a semblance of sanity He is repatriated back to Australia to try desperately to resume his life with his family while his heart lies with his lost love buried beneath a gnarled old apricot tree somewhere on the island of Crete

Hutchinson's Australasian Encyclopædia George Collins Levey,1892 Sharks: A History of Fear in Australia Callum Denness,2019-09-24 For as long as people have lived in Australia the shark has loomed large in our fears From the Noongar people of Western Australia who stayed out of the water for fear of being taken to media hysteria about attacks and even sightings today sharks occupy the dark recesses of our national psyche unlike any other predator They challenge the very sense of ourselves as Australians a people who hug the coastline and love the freedom of the surf And the dispute between whether to kill or protect sharks cuts to the political core of our nation yet another divide between the right and the left There is no denying that shark attacks have been increasing in recent years and so have our fears Where do we go from here

How worried should we be Journalist Callum Denness deep dives into the history of our relationship with sharks and circles our fear by talking to activists marine biologists politicians surfers survivors and those who've lost loved ones Compelling and challenging this is the clearest picture yet of whether or not we can co exist with sharks Don't get back into the water until you read Sharks A History of Fear in Australia A Portrait of the Artist as Australian Paul Matthew St

Dadaism and his identity as an Australian Seascapes: Shaped by the Sea Mike Brown, Barbara Humberstone, 2015-02-28 Despite the fact that the sea covers 70 per cent of the Earth's surface and is integral to the workings of the world it has been largely neglected or perceived as marginal in modern consciousness This edited collection disrupts notions of the sea as other as foreign and featureless through specific situated accounts which highlight the centrality of the sea for the individuals concerned Bringing together academics who combine scholarly expertise with lived experiences on in and with the sea it examines humans' relationships with the sea Through the use of auto ethnographic accounting the contributors reflect on how the sea has shaped their sense of identity belonging and connection They examine what it is to be engaged with the sea and narrate their lived sentient corporeal experiences The sea is a cultural seascape just as it is physical reality The sea shapes us and we in turn attempt to shape it as we construct various versions of it that reflect our on going and mutable relationship with it The use of embodied accounts as a way of conveying lived experiences and the integration of relevant theoretical frames for understanding the broader cultural implications provide new opportunities to understand seascapes Wetlands in a Dry Land Emily O'Gorman, 2024-08-06 What counts as a wetland especially in Australia the driest inhabited continent on earth In the name of agriculture urban growth and disease control humans have drained filled or otherwise destroyed nearly 87 percent of the world's wetlands over the past three centuries Only recently have wetlands been widely recognised as worth preserving for their diverse plants animals insects and their human histories Examining Australia's own Murray Darling Basin environmental historian Emily O Gorman shows how people and animals have shaped wetlands since the late nineteenth century O Gorman draws on archival research and original interviews to illuminate how Aboriginal peoples acted then and now as custodians of the landscape how the movements of water birds affected farmers and how mosquitoes have defied efforts to fully understand let alone control them

Situating Australia's history within global environmental humanities conversations O Gorman argues that we need to understand wetlands as socioecological landscapes that transcend the nature culture divide and to embrace non Western ways of knowing and being Only then can we begin to create sustainable relationships with and futures for the wetlands
