EIUC Venice Italy Human Rights Ethics Clark Butler, 2008 Human Rights Ethics makes an important contribution to contemporary philosophical and political debates concerning the advancement of global justice and human rights Butler's book also lays claim to a significant place in both normative ethics and human rights studies in as much as it seeks to vindicate a universalistic rational approach to human rights ethics Butler's innovative approach is not based on murky claims to natural rights that supposedly hold wherever human beings exist nor does it succumb to the traditional problems of justification associated with utilitarianism Kantianism and other procedural approaches to human rights studies Instead Butler proposes a dialectical justification of human rights by indirect proof that claims not to be question begging Very much in the spirit of Hegel and Habermas Butler proposes to vindicate a totally rational account of human rights but one that depends concretely and historically on a dialectically constructed right to freedom of thought in its universal modes

Faith in Human Rights Robert Traer, 1991-01-01 In this first comprehensive study of the problem of a universal definition of human rights Robert Traer argues that contemporary theological discourse contains an affirmation of faith that unites members of world religious traditions with secular humanists in a common struggle to establish human rights as the basis for human dignity Scholars of religion law and comparative religious ethics as well as human rights advocates will find it an invaluable guide Freedom of Religion or Belief Heiner Bielefeldt, Nazila Ghanea, Michael Wiener, 2016-01-21 Violations of religious freedom and violence committed in the name of religion grab our attention on a daily basis Freedom of religion or belief is a key human right the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights numerous conventions declarations and soft law standards include specific provisions on freedom of religion or belief The 1981 Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief has been interpreted since 1986 by the mandate of the UN Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief Special Rapporteurs for example those on racism freedom of expression minority issues and cultural rights and Treaty Bodies for example the Human Rights Committee the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination and the Committee on the Rights of the Child have also elaborated on freedom of religion or belief in the context of their respective mandates Freedom of Religion or Belief An International Law Commentary is the first commentary to look comprehensively at the international provisions for the protection of freedom of religion or belief considering how they are interpreted by various United Nations Special Procedures and Treaty Bodies Structured around the thematic categories of the United Nations Special Rapporteur's framework for communications the commentary analyses for example the limitations on the wearing of religious symbols and vulnerable situations including those of women detainees refugees children minorities and migrants through a combination of scholarly expertise and practical experience The Changing Nature of Religious Rights under International Law Malcolm Evans, Peter Petkoff, Julian Rivers, 2015-03-19 The Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief as proclaimed by the United Nations General Assembly in 1981 is the only universal human rights instrument specifically focusing on religious intolerance and discrimination. However, recent years have seen increasing controversy surrounding this right in both political and legal contexts. The European Court of Human Rights has experienced a vast expansion in the number of cases it has had brought before it concerning religious freedom and politically the boundaries of the right have been much disputed. This book provides a systematic analysis of the different approaches to religious rights which exist in public international law. The book explores how particular institutional perspectives emerge in the context of these differing approaches. It examines and challenges these institutional perspectives. It identifies new directions for approaching religious rights through international law by examining existing legal tools and assesses their achievements and shortcomings. It studies religious organisations' support for international human rights protection as well as religious critique of international human rights and the development of an alternative religious Bills of Rights. It investigates whether expressions of members belonging to religious minorities can be considered under the minority right to culture rather than the right to religion and discusses the benefits and shortcomings of such a route. It analyses the reach and limits of the provisions in the 1981 Declaration, identifies ways in which the right is being eroded as a concept and suggests new ways in which the right can be reinforced and protected.

The European Court of Human Rights and Minority Religions

Effie Fokas, James T Richardson, 2020-04-28. This book includes a collection of studies focused on engagements of religious minorities with the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR). Beginning with an introduction of the global importance of the ECtHR as a standard setter in the protection of religious minority rights, the subsequent five chapters entail critical assessments of some of the Court's case law dealing with religious minority claims, exploring their clarity and consistency or lack thereof and controversiality. In the process, these texts impart a nuanced perspective on the challenges the Court faces in striking the right balance between protecting individual freedoms and respecting state rights to manage nationally and culturally sensitive matters. The second set of contributions makes readers privy to the varied results of this balancing act on the ground. Specifically, it offers empirically based insight into the impact of the Court's religion-related case law on grassroots religious minority groups working to defend their individual and communal rights. The chapters taken together deepen our understanding of the ECtHR in its approach to and impact on religious minorities and offer a rare vantage point on the Court from the messages it generates to the messages received by religious minorities at the grassroots level. The chapters in this book were originally published in Religion State Society, the Journal of Muslim Minority Affairs and Democratization.
