French Notables Reflections Of Industrialization And Regionalism:

French Notables Thomas D. Beck, Martha W. Beck, 1987 French Notables is the result of the first comprehensive analysis of the electoral rolls and the economic censuses of the censitaire monarchies. The Becks have concluded that although the nobility remained the wealthiest group in society and the landed in general were still dominant, the diversity of the notables and the economy was great. Men such as negociants, meuniers and cultivateurs were all part of the electorate and their numbers increased with economic growth. The non landed electors were found everywhere but concentrations of more than 20 000 people found them in sharply rising percentages. The economy was also highly diversified with industry especially dominant in cities of more than 40 000 people. The north of France especially along the coast was the most advanced region of France and the electors reflected the industrialization and regionalism of the country. Typology of

Nineteenth Century A. Joseph Pollard, 2020-02-13 The industrial revolution in Great Britain was the first example of the transition to a modern industrial economy. Certain features of this transition were later copied and modified by other countries undergoing the same process. This book considers the main similarities and differences in the process of industrialization grouping the main countries. The Formation of the Parisian Bourgeoisie, 1690-1830 David Garrioch, 1996 Despite their importance during the French Revolution the Paris middle classes are little known. This book focuses on the family organization and the political role of the Paris commercial middle classes using as a case study the Faubourg St Marcel and particularly the parish of St Mard. David Garrioch argues that in the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries the commercial middle classes were steadfastly local in their family ties and outlook. He shows too that they took independent political action in defense of their local position. This gradually changed during the eighteenth century and the Revolution greatly accelerated the process of integration at the same time broadening the composition of what may now be termed the Parisian bourgeoisie. Central to Garrioch's argument is the idea that family politics and power are intimately connected. He shows the centrality of kinship to local politics in the first half of the eighteenth century and the way new family structures were related to changes in the nature of politics even before the Revolution. Among the many important issues considered are birth control, the role of women, the importance of lineage, the spatial limits of middle class lives and the language and secularization of politics. Encyclopedia of the Age of Political Revolutions and New Ideologies, 1760-1815 Gregory

Fremont-Barnes, 2007-09-30 By giving rise to new ideologies that in time transformed the political structure of much of the world the American and French Revolutions stand as two of the most important political events in global history. The American establishment of a Republican government and the gradual expansion of democracy that ensued altered traditional political and social thought thus shaping the later French Revolution and creating the core ethic of later American political
