Contexts Pedro Guijarro-Fuentes, Katrin Schmitz, Natascha Müller, 2015-11-23 This volume brings together new research from different theoretical paradigms addressing the acquisition of French. It focuses on the acquisition of French in combination with English, German, Russian or Spanish and enriches our understanding of the particularities of French and the role of language combinations in the acquisition process. The chapters examine the development of different grammatical aspects: word order phenomena, adjective placement, dislocation and cleft constructions, wh questions, DP phenomena, argument omissions and constructions with particular word groups and use various methodologies such as elicitation tasks, longitudinal studies and parsing experiments to further add to our understanding of how French is acquired in different contexts. This book will be a resource for researchers and graduate students working in the discipline of language acquisition, especially those who are interested in language contact phenomena where two typologically different languages are involved.

The Acquisition of French Philippe Prévost, 2009 This book presents a thorough description of morphosyntactic knowledge developed by learners of French in four different learning situations: first language (L1) acquisition, second language (L2) acquisition, bilingualism and acquisition by children with Specific Language Impairment within the theoretical framework of generative grammar. This approach allows for multiple comparisons across acquisition contexts which provides the reader with invaluable insights into the nature of the acquisition process. The book is divided into four parts, each dealing with a major morphosyntactic domain of acquisition: the verbal domain, the pronominal domain, the nominal domain and the CP domain. Each part contains four chapters: the first one presenting an overview of the basic facts and analyses of the relevant properties of French and the next three focusing on the different acquisition contexts. This book will be useful to anyone interested in the acquisition of French and in language development in general. It is also meant to stimulate cross-linguistic research from a theoretical perspective.

French Women and the Empire Marie-Paule Ha, 2014 The first book-length investigation of colonial gender politics in Third Republic France using Indochina as a case study, charts women's experiences and activities to reveal a transformation in French views of empire from colonial life as an exclusively male preserve to one where women's presence was seen as essential.

The Categorization of Spatial Entities in Language and Cognition Michel Aurnague, Maya Hickmann, Laure Vieu, 2007-04-18 Despite a growing interest for space in language, most research has focused on spatial markers specifying the static or dynamic relationships among entities: verbs, prepositions, postpositions, case markings. Little attention has been paid to the very properties of spatial entities: their status in linguistic descriptions and their implications for spatial cognition and its development in children. This topic is at the center of this book that opens a new field by sketching some major theoretical and methodological directions for future research on spatial entities. Brought together: linguistic descriptions of spatial systems, formal accounts of linguistic data and experimental findings from psycholinguistic studies, all couched within a wide cross-linguistic perspective. Such an interdisciplinary approach provides a rich overview of the many questions that remain unanswered in relation to spatial entities while also throwing a new light on previous research focusing on related topics concerning space and or the relation between language and cognition      The Construal of Spatial Meaning Carita Paradis, Jean Hudson, Ulf Magnusson, 2013-04-25 This book considers how language users express and understand literal and metaphorical spatial meaning not only in language but also through gesture and pointing Researchers explore the ways in which theoretical developments in language and cognition new empirical techniques and new computational facilities have led to a greater understanding of the relationship between physical space and mental space as expressed in human communication      European Nutrition and Health Report 2004

I. Elmadfa, Elisabeth Weichselbaum, 2005-01-01 The European Nutrition and Health Report is the first comprehensive assessment of the present status of nutrition and health in Europe and of the available resources and requirements for compatible and representative data from different countries 13 EU member states and Norway have participated in this project pursuing three main goals Compilation of available nutrient intake and health data Identification of major nutrition and health problems Identification of problems concerning the methods and compatibility of data collection The main topics include food supply and availability energy and nutrient intake in different age groups health indicators and status obesity physical activity and smoking The Appendix offers a detailed publication of national reports and single projects This book provides a solid basis for the planning of future projects in nutrition and health and should be of great interest to all professionals in the fields of nutrition preventive medicine and public health as well as to health policy makers      The Acquisition of Syntax in Romance Languages Vincent Torrens, Linda Escobar, 2006-07-26 This volume includes a selection of papers that address a wide range of acquisition phenomena from different Romance languages and all share a common theoretical approach based on the Principles and Parameters theory They favour discuss and sometimes challenge traditional explanations of first and second language acquisition in terms of maturation of general principles universal to all languages They all depart from the view that language acquisition can be explained in terms of learning language specific rules constraints or structures The different parts into which this volume is organized reflect different approaches that current research has offered which deal with issues of development of reflexive pronouns determiners clitics verbs auxiliaries inflection wh movement resumptive pronouns topic and focus mood the syntax discourse interface and null arguments

Early Child Development in the French Tradition Andre Vyt, Henriette Bloch, Marc H. Bornstein, 2013-05-13 This volume shares significant contemporary Francophone contributions to developmental psychology outside geographic and intellectual borders of French speaking countries Except for the spread of Piagetian theory after World War II into Anglophone psychology these new publications have not become so well known worldwide as progress in Francophone developmental psychology warrants However the work of a new generation of developmental theorists and experimentalists continues to shape important and original lines of thinking and research in France Canada and in other French speaking countries This work also contributes uniquely to issues such as sensori motor development perception language acquisition social interaction and the growth and induction of cognitive mechanisms Scientific concepts are not only embedded in a paradigm but also in a culture and a language Instead of writing about Francophone developmental psychology from outside this volume brings together original English language contributions written by researchers working in different Francophone countries Chapters summarize and interpret research on a given topic making explicit the context of philosophical and theoretical traditions in which the empirical advances are embedded Original essays are accompanied by editorial commentaries from eminent scientists working on the same topics in other parts of the world topics that are closely related to Francophone streams of thought and themes of study Together these essays fully and faithfully represent modern scientific perspectives toward understanding many facets of mental growth and development of the young child Language

Acquisition across Linguistic and Cognitive Systems Michèle Kail, Maya Hickmann, 2010-12-15 How and why do all children learn language Why do some have difficulties while others are early language learners What are the consequences of early bilingualism Is it possible to reach native like competence in a foreign language Although we still cannot fully answer these questions research during the last two decades has begun to solve some pieces of the puzzle This book proposes an interdisciplinary collection of writings from some of the best specialists across several fields in cognitive science offering a wide sample of recent advances in the study of first language acquisition bilingualism second language acquisition and disorders of oral language It is addressed to all researchers and students interested in language acquisition as well as to teachers clinicians and parents who will find therein many new findings and varied methodological approaches as well as challenging questions that are still debated and in need of further research OECD Economic Surveys: France 2015

OECD, 2015-04-02 This OECD Economic Survey of France examines recent economic developments policies and prospects Special chapters cover competition adult training and skills Language-Specific Factors in First Language

Acquisition Anne-Katharina Harr, 2012-12-06 A growing number of studies have begun to examine the influence of language specific factors on language acquisition During language acquisition German children from six years on use structures that are similar to those of adults in their language group and also encode all semantic components from an early age In striking contrast French children up to ten years have difficulties producing some of the complex structures that are necessary for the simultaneous expression of several semantic components Nonetheless in addition to these striking cross linguistic differences the results of this study also clearly show similar developmental progressions in other respects suggesting the impact of general developmental determinants Alsatian Acts of Identity Liliane Mangold Vassberg, 1993 A German dialect spoken in Alsace France has rapidly lost way to French since 1945 This book investigates language choice language attitudes and ethnic identity in Alsace today The Alsatian case study points out the complex interrelationship of linguistic and identity change with historical social and psychological processes State of Health in the EU France: Country Health Profile
