systems in early modern France While the historiography on plague argues that the plague of Provence in the 1720s represented the development of a new and modern form of public health care under the control of the absolutist monarchy it shows that the key elements in this system were established centuries earlier because of the actions of urban governments It moves away from taking a medical focus on plague to examine the institutions that managed disease control in early modern France In doing so it seeks to provide a wider context of French plague care to better understand the systems used at Provence in the 1720s It shows that the French developed a polycentric system of plague care which drew on the input of numerous actors combat the disease

Born of Lakes and Plains: Mixed-Descent Peoples and the Making of the American West Anne F. Hyde, 2022-02-15 Finalist for the 2023 Stubbendieck Great Plains Distinguished Book Prize Immersive and humane Jennifer Szalai New York Times A fresh history of the West grounded in the lives of mixed descent Native families who first bridged and then collided with racial boundaries Often overlooked there is mixed blood at the heart of America And at the heart of Native life for centuries there were complex households using intermarriage to link disparate communities and create protective circles of kin Beginning in the seventeenth century Native peoples Ojibwes Otoes Cheyennes Chinooks and others formed new families with young French English Canadian and American fur traders who spent months in smoky winter lodges or at boisterous summer rendezvous These families built cosmopolitan trade centers from Michilimackinac on the Great Lakes to Bellevue on the Missouri River Bent's Fort in the southern Plains and Fort Vancouver in the Pacific Northwest. Their family names are often imprinted on the landscape but their voices have long been muted in our histories. Anne F. Hyde's pathbreaking history restores them in full. Vividly combining the panoramic and the particular, Born of Lakes and Plains follows five mixed-descent families whose lives intertwined major events: imperial battles over the fur trade, the first extensions of American authority west of the Appalachians, the ravages of imported disease, the violence of Indian removal, encroaching American settlement, and following the Civil War, the disasters of Indian war, reservations policy, and allotment. During the pivotal nineteenth century, mixed-descent people who had once occupied a middle ground became a racial problem, drawing hostility from all sides. Their identities were challenged by the pseudo-science of blood quantum, the instrument of allotment policy, and their traditions by the Indian schools established to erase Native ways. As Anne F. Hyde shows, they navigated the hard choices they faced as they had for centuries by relying on the rich resources of family and kin. Here is an indelible western history with a new human face.

Franco-American Identity, Community, and La Guiannee Anna Servaes, 2015-04-10

French traditions in America do not live solely in Louisiana. Franco-American Identity, Community, and La Guianne travels to Ste Genevieve, Missouri, and Prairie du Rocher, Illinois, to mark the Franco-American traditions still practiced in both these Midwestern towns. This Franco-American cultural identity has continued for over 250 years, surviving language loss, extreme sociopolitical pressures, and the American Midwest's demands for conformity. Ethnic identity presents itself in many forms, including festivals and traditional celebrations which take on an even more profound and visible role when language loss occurs. On New Year's Eve, the guionneurs revelers who participate in the celebration disguise themselves in eighteenth and nineteenth-century costume and travel throughout their town singing and wishing New Year's greetings to other members of the community. This celebration, like such others as Cajun Mardi Gras in Louisiana, Mumming in Ireland, and Newfoundland as well as the Carnaval de Binche, belongs to a category of begging-quest festivals that have endured since the Medieval Age. These festivals may have also adapted or evolved from pre-Christian pagan rituals. Anna Servaes produces a historical context for both the development of French-American culture as well as La Guianne in order to understand contemporary identity. She analyzes the celebration which affirms ethnic community, drawing upon theories by influential anthropologist Victor Turner. In addition, Servaes discusses cultural continuity and its relationship to language, revealing contemporary expressions of Franco-American identity.
