French For Leisure Tourism:

Progress in French Tourism Geographies Mathis Stock, 2021-01-06 This book provides an overview of the recent progress in Francophone tourism geography. It focuses on the theoretical advances in social and cultural geography whereby the symbolic dimensions of tourism and the creation of tourism worlds are key. It puts forward the tourist conceived as mobile, situated, skilled, reflexive inhabitant of places which gives all its meaning to the expression inhabiting touristic worlds. More specifically, this book addresses numerous rarely addressed issues such as the geo history of tourism, the material cultures of tourists, the digitality and disconnection from digital technologies in National Parks or the use of knowledge of tourists in metropolises. It gives insights in the specific Francophone approaches such as inhabiting the urbanity of tourist resorts and the notion of territory in tourist studies. Finally, it provides an overview of the urban dimensions of tourism place making in the form of heritage, oasis, tourism, sports, tourism, production of space in Mexican resorts. As such, the book provides a key read for academics, students and professionals in tourism studies and tourism geography in search for alternative approaches.

The Encyclopedia of Tourism and Recreation in Marine Environments Michael Lück, 2008 Marine tourism has become one of the fastest growing areas within the tourism industry. With the increased use of marine environments comes the need for informed planning and sustainable management as well as for the education and training of planners, managers and operators. Combining the disciplines of marine scientists and tourism researchers, this encyclopedia will bring together the terms, concepts and theories related to recreational and tourism activities in marine settings. Entries range from short definitions to medium and long articles. Tourism, Religion and Spiritual Journeys Dallen Timothy, Daniel Olsen, 2006-09-27 Religion and spirituality are still among the most common motivations for travel. Many major tourism destinations have developed largely as a result of their connections to sacred people, places and events. Providing a comprehensive assessment of the primary issues and concepts related to this intersection of tourism and religion, this revealing book gives a balanced discussion of both the theoretical and applied subjects that destination planners, religious organizations, scholars and tourism service providers must deal with on a daily basis. Bringing together a distinguished list of contributors, this volume takes a global approach and incorporates substantial empirical cases from Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, Roman Catholicism, Mormonism, New Ageism, Sikhism, Buddhism and the spiritual philosophies of East Asia. On a conceptual level, it considers amongst other topics: contested heritage, the pilgrim/tourist dichotomy, secularization of pilgrimage, experiences, religious humanism, educational aspects of religious tourism, commodification of religious icons and services. A vibrant collection of essays, this outstanding book discusses many important practices, paradigms and problems that are currently being examined and debated. It raises an array of significant and interesting questions and as such is a valuable resource for students, scholars and researchers of tourism, religion and cultural studies. Enacting Brittany Patrick Young, 2017-03-02 Brittany offers an excellent example of a French region that once attracted a certain cultivated elite of travel connoisseurs but in which more popular tourism developed relatively early in the twentieth century. It is therefore a strategic choice as a case study of some of the processes associated with the emergence of mass tourism and the effects of this kind of tourism development on local populations. Efforts to package Breton cultural difference in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries marked a significant advance in heritage tourism and a departure from what is commonly perceived to be a French intolerance of cultural diversity within its borders. This study explores the means by which key actors—middle class associations, businesses, governmental bodies, cultural intermediaries—pursued tourist development in the region and the effect this had on Breton cultural identification. Chapters are arranged thematically and consider the rise of rural tourism in France and the preservation, display, and enactment of Breton culture in its most visible locations: the natural landscape of Brittany, Breton dress, early heritage festivals, and religious Pardons. The final chapter explores the staging of Breton culture at the Paris World's Fair of 1937 and the roots of state-sponsored mass tourism. Beyond those interested in the history of French tourism, this study will also be invaluable to historians and social scientists concerned with understanding the dynamics involved in the emergence of mass tourism, its causes and consequences in particular locales in the present as well as in the past.

French Global Christie McDonald, Susan Suleiman, 2010-10-25. Recasting French literary history in terms of the cultures and peoples that interacted within and outside of France's national boundaries, this volume offers a new way of looking at the history of a national literature along with a truly global and contemporary understanding of language, literature, and culture. The relationship between France's national territory and other regions of the world where French is spoken and written—most of them former colonies—has long been central to discussions of Francophonie. Boldly expanding such discussions to the whole range of French literature, the essays in this volume explore spaces, mobilities, and multiplicities from the Middle Ages to today. They rethink literary history not in terms of national boundaries as traditional literary histories have done but in terms of a global paradigm that emphasizes border crossings and encounters with others. Contributors offer new ways of reading canonical texts and considering other texts that are not part of the traditional canon. By emphasizing diverse conceptions of language, text, space, and nation, these essays establish a model approach that remains sensitive to the specificities of time and place and to the theoretical concerns informing the study of national literatures in the twenty-first century.

Cold War Holidays Christopher Endy, 2005-12-15 Moving beyond traditional state centered conceptions of foreign relations Christopher Endy approaches the Cold War era relationship between France and the United States from the original perspective of tourism Focusing on American travel in France after World War II Cold War Holidays shows how both the US and French governments actively cultivated and shaped leisure travel to advance their foreign policy agendas From the US government's campaign to encourage American vacations in Western Europe as part of the Marshall Plan to Charles de Gaulle's aggressive promotion of American tourism to France in the 1960s Endy reveals how consumerism and globalization played a major role in transatlantic affairs Yet contrary to analyses of globalization that emphasize the decline of the nation state Endy argues that an era notable for the rise of informal transnational exchanges was also a time of entrenched national identity and persistent state power A lively array of voices informs Endy s analysis Parisian hoteliers and cafe waiters American and French diplomats advertising and airline executives travel writers and tourists themselves The resulting portrait reveals tourism as a colorful and consequential illustration of the changing nature of international relations in an age of globalization
