The New Extremism in 21st Century Britain Roger Eatwell, Matthew Goodwin, 2012-11-12 Since the 1990s there has been a growing concern about the resurgence of extremist and radical movements in the Western world Although a variety of challenges to the liberal democratic order have emerged the main focus of concern among academics policy makers and practitioners within Europe and beyond has been on the growth and activities of Islamists and to a lesser extent the extreme right However these forms of extremism are seldom placed alongside each other and in a manner that is sensitive to both the causes and consequences of extremist mobilization This book presents new empirical research on the causes of these two new extremisms in 21st Century Britain and the appropriate responses to it by both the state and civil society Both forms of extremism pose vital questions for those concerned with the development of a more cohesive and stable society Unlike many studies this volume adopts a holistic approach bringing together experts from a variety of disciplines to examine the factors that cause support and the potential policy responses including key questions such as What is the current level of support for Islamism and right wing extremism Who votes for extreme right parties such as the BNP in modern Britain and despite its recent gains why has the extreme right achieved only limited success What are the steps of recruitment into radical violent takfiri jihadism How effective are current responses to Islamism and the extreme right such as those offered by Preventing Violent Extremism PVE wider public policy and policing What is the potential role of political actors media and civil society in responding to the extremist challenge Challenging broad assumptions and bringing together leading scholars in this rapidly

Authoritarianism and the Evolution of West European Electoral Politics Erik R. Tillman, 2021 Authoritarianism and the Evolution of West European Electoral Politics provides a novel explanation of rising Euroscepticism and right wing populism in Western Europe The changing political and cultural environment of recent decades is generating an ongoing realignment of voters structured by authoritarianism which is a psychological disposition towards the maintenance of social cohesion and order at the expense of individual autonomy and diversity High authoritarians find the values and demographic changes of the past several decades a threat to social cohesion which has created an opportunity for PRR parties to gain their support by campaigning against these perceived threats to national community posed by immigration values change and European integration The result is a worldview evolution in which party conflict is shaped by the rival preferences of high and low authoritarians Drawing on national and cross national survey data as well as an original survey experiment this book demonstrates how the relationship between authoritarianism and 1 attitudes towards the EU and 2 voting behaviour has evolved since the 1990s In doing so this book advances these literatures by providing an explanation for why certain voters are shifting towards PRR parties as electoral politics realigns arises out of a specially commissioned issue of West European Politics marking the journal's 30th anniversary. International Economic Law in the 21st Century Ernst-Ulrich Petersmann, 2012-07-24 The state centred Westphalian model of international law has failed to protect human rights and other international public goods effectively Most international trade financial and environmental agreements do not even refer to human rights consumer welfare democratic citizen participation and transnational rule of law for the benefit of citizens This book argues that these multilevel governance failures are largely due to inadequate regulation of the collective action problems in the supply of international public goods such as inadequate legal judicial and democratic accountability of governments vis a vis citizens. Rather than treating citizens as mere objects of intergovernmental economic and environmental regulation and leaving multilevel governance of international public goods to discretionary foreign policy, human rights and constitutional democracy call for civilizing and constitutionalizing international economic and environmental cooperation by stronger legal and judicial protection of citizens and their constitutional rights in international economic law. Moreover, intergovernmental regulation of transnational cooperation among citizens must be justified by principles of justice and multilevel constitutional restraints protecting rights of citizens and their public reason. The reality of constitutional pluralism requires respecting legitimately diverse conceptions of human rights and democratic constitutionalism. The obvious failures in the governance of interrelated trading financial and environmental systems must be restrained by cosmopolitan constitutional conceptions of international law protecting the transnational rule of law and participatory democracy for the benefit of citizens.

Military and Society in 21st Century Europe Jürgen Kuhlmann, Jean M. Callaghan, 2000. This outstanding compendium of articles on Europe's military situation as we enter the new millennium has been compiled under the aegis of the George Marshall European Center for Security Studies. The leading analysts of military studies in every major nation of Europe are included along with three overview pieces that set the tone and content for this nicely integrated volume. The opening pieces by Martin Shaw on the evolution of a common risk society, Christopher Dandeker on the military in democratic societies, and Wilfried von Bredow on the re-nationalization of military strategy set the tone for the work as a whole. Although the Cold War is now a decade removed from the new Europe, the challenges of transition to new defense systems and institutional structures still confront those who plan the future for the military establishments of Europe. The individual country studies contained in this volume as well as the final analysis of the trends and probable future developments in Europe should be required reading throughout the national security structure for politicians and decision makers seeking to understand the dilemmas facing European militaries and the societies they defend. The country chapters cover a wide range of nations. Jean Callaghan examines the Bulgarian armed forces after its 1997 elections. Marie Vlachova and Stefan Sarvas review civil military relations in the Czech nation. Jano Sabo studies the role of the defense sector in Hungary. Adriana Stanescu sees Romania as a case of delayed modernization. Paul Klein and Jürgen Kuhlmann review the German armed forces in the context of a peace dividend. Bernard Boene and Didier Danet consider France in the light of the post-draft situation. Marina Nuciari and Giuseppe Caforio consider the Italian military in a democratic context. Finally, Jan van der Meulen and his colleagues look upon the Netherlands military as a case study in post-modernization. The final contribution is a summary report by the editors on the lessons that have been learned in assessing the contemporary civil military complex. In all, this is a state-of-the-art volume on the state of the armed forces in Europe.
