Evangelios Apocrifosunauthentic Gospels:

Evangelios Apocrifos Edmundo González Blanco,2015-04 Los Evangelios apócrifos Aurelio de Santos Otero,1979

Evangelios apócrifos Autores Varios,2006-10 Los Evangelios apocrifos fueron escritos en los primeros siglos del cristianismo y cuentan historias relativas a Jesus que contienen episodios omitidos en los textos canonicos No fueron aceptados por la ortodoxia catolica y entre ellos se encuentran los rollos del mar muerto y los de Nag Hammadi Se les dio el nombre de Evangelios por su aspecto similar a los cuatro evangelios admitidos en el canon del Nuevo Testamento Sin embargo muchos de ellos no tienen un estilo evangelico Algunos de estos escritos aparecieron en comunidades gnosticicas con la intencion de contener palabras ocultas en griego apokryphos Y cabe comentar que el termino apocrifo no indicaba en sus origenes falsedad sino misterio Estos mensajes ocultos entre los discursos de Cristo y atribuidos a El estaban reservados a los iniciados en esas comunidades The Apocryphal Gospels were written during the first centuries of Christianity and tell stories from the life of Jesus which include episodes excluded from the Canonical texts The Apocrypha not accepted by Catholic tradition include the Dead Sea Scrolls and the Nag Hammadi Scrolls They were called Gospels for their similarity in form to the four Gospels accepted into the Canon of the New Testament Nevertheless many of them lack a strictly evangelical style Some appeared in the Gnostic communities with the intention of relaying hidden or encrypted words in ancient Greek apokryphos It s worth noting that the term apocryphal did not originally indicate error or exclusion but mystery These messages hidden in the words spoken by and attributed to Jesus were reserved for those fully initiated in such communities

The Apocryphal Gospels Charles River Charles River Editors,Gustavo Vazquez Lozano,2017-01-24 Includes pictures Includes excerpts from the apocrypha Includes a list of the apocrypha online resources and a bibliography for further reading Between 50 and 90 CE the various writings that comprise the New Testament were written including the Four Gospels the Acts of the Apostles the Epistles of Paul and other letters to more general communities of the early Church But what is recognized as the 26 books of the New Testament today in literally hundreds of English translations actually took several more centuries to be determined as canonical by the Church In fact it was not until a synod in Rome in 382 that the Church in the West formally adopted a list of the canonical books of the New Testament For the intervening three centuries there was much discussion among different writers over the many manuscripts circulating among the early Christian communities Many of the manuscripts were anonymously authored by members of early heretical groups of Christians who shaped supposedly inspired writings to provide support for their doctrinal positions Many more had the veneer of inspired texts because they were attributed to one of the Twelve Apostles or Mary the mother of Jesus they claimed to offer details of Jesus life not covered in depth in the Four Gospels such as his infancy and childhood or the activities of the named apostle or doctrinal teachings The process of determining the Canon of the New Testament was a long one It involved numerous scholars directed by the teachings of the Church sifting through numerous manuscripts with various attributed authorships

The 29 that made it into the canon were those that passed muster in terms of apostolic authorship and conformity to orthodox Church teaching. Most of those that did not make it failed on those two accounts. Others were not included because they were judged not to have been written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. Whatever the reason they were excluded, the writings that comprise the New Testament Apocrypha while not inspired Scripture do show something of the context in which the early Church developed its doctrines and its writings. Even today not every branch of the Christian church agrees on which writings should be regarded as canonical and which are apocryphal, even though some apocryphal texts often have noticeable links with books regarded as canonical. Regardless, the New Testament Apocrypha refers to texts written by early Christians that were not included in the Bible used by the main branches of Christianity today. These texts vary in subject matter, with some being accounts of Jesus, others being about the nature of God, and still others being accounts and teachings of Jesus' apostles. What makes them fascinating is not just the history behind why they are considered non-canonical, but what they tell us about the early Church and early Christianity. Moreover, they offer insight into what sources were used to write them and whether they shared the same sources as the texts that comprise the Bible today. Given their historical and religious importance, there is still a fierce debate over the authenticity of many of these texts.

The Apocryphal Gospels: The History of the New Testament Apocrypha Not Included in the Bible looks at some of the famous texts that were kept out of the Bible. Along with pictures of important people, places, and events, you will learn about the apocryphal books like never before.

Los evangelios apócrifos, 19?? ~ Los Evangelios Apócrifos, 1956 The Excluded Gospels of the Bible Jesus' Followers, 2018-06

According to some estimates, early Christians wrote at least twenty gospels that weren't included in the Bible. Many of these non-biblical gospels apparently disappeared later, although it's possible that copies of some of them still survive at unknown locations. Luckily, several that appeared to be missing have been found again in modern times. But some are still missing and could be permanently lost.

Included in this book are:

- The Gospel of The Infancy of Jesus
- The Gospel of Bartholomew
- The Gospel of Mary Magdalene
- The Gospel of Judas
- The Gospel of Marcion
- The Gospel of Mary
- The Gospel of Nicodemus
- The Gospel of Peter
- The Gospel of Philip
- The Gospel of Thomas
- The Gospel of Truth
- The Secret Gospel of Mark

The most important point is that the canon was edited for political and cultural reasons, and a full understanding of Christianity or Christian Philosophy is not complete without a study of these additional gospels. Scholars know about the past existence of some missing gospels because they are mentioned in other ancient writings that have survived. Parts of some lost books were even copied into surviving writings, so that a portion of their original content is still preserved. Authors of the New Testament gospels apparently got some of their information from earlier writings. Modern scholars call these earlier writings sources and have determined that there were probably three of them. But apparently all of them have disappeared. These three lost sources may have been the first gospels. Their ancient names are unknown, so they are usually identified by modern names, specifically the Lost Q Source, the Pre-Markan Passion Narrative, and the Signs Gospel. Because no copies of any of them have survived they are sometimes called hypothetical gospels But most scholars believe that they really did exist at one time Actually these three missing gospels aren't completely lost since material from them is preserved in Matthew Mark Luke and John In fact considerable knowledge about their original content has been obtained by studying this preserved material Some other non biblical gospels have been discovered more directly because actual physical remains have been found Examples include the Gospel of Peter the Gospel of Mary and the Gospel of Judas All of these were discovered in modern times But only fragments or secondary translations have been found so the complete original forms of all of them are still unavailable These three rediscovered gospels are named after Simon Peter Mary Magdalene and Judas Iscariot but those weren't their real authors Their real authors are unknown and will probably never be identified In ancient times unknown authors would sometimes ascribe their books to famous people in an effort to get more publicity and authority for them Ancient writers mentioned a number of other gospels which they knew about but which apparently no longer survive These include the Gospel of Matthias the Gospel of Perfection the Gospel of the Seventy the Dialogue of the Savior the Gospel of the Twelve the Book of the Hebrews the Gospel of the Nazarenes the Gospel of Bartholomew the Secret Gospel of Mark and the Gospel of Eve Other gospels may have also existed but even their names have been lost Some early gospels may have vanished because they were secret gospels and very few copies were made Others could have been lost due to wars conquests upheavals and persecutions In addition there have been accusations that early church leaders intentionally destroyed some books in order to cover up embarrassing facts about the origins of Christianity Some intentional destruction did take place but exactly what was lost can't be determined Recently it seems that the Gospel of Mary has been verified as authentic in both papyrus and ink These texts are a must read for those who wish to know the whole story and the New Testament
