debates about gender and language by probing the histories of the philosophy and sciences of language Drawing on a wide range of texts from understudied ethnographic and scientific works to canonical literature and philosophy Sophie Salvo uncovers the prehistory of the inextricability of gender and language Taking German discourses on language as her focus she argues that we are not the inventors but rather the inheritors and adapters of the notion that gender and language are interrelated Particularly during the long nineteenth century ideas about sexual differences shaped how language was understood classified and analyzed As Salvo explains philosophers asserted the patriarchal origins of language linguists investigated women's languages and grammatical gender and literary Modernists imagined feminine sign systems and in doing so they not only deemed sex based divisions to be necessary categories of language but also produced a plethora of gendered tropes and fictions which they used both to support their claims and delimit their disciplines Articulating Difference charts new territory revealing how gendered conceptions of language make possible the misogynistic logic of exclusion that underlies arguments claiming for example that women cannot be great orators or writers While Salvo focuses on how male scholars aligned language study with masculinity she also uncovers how women responded highlighting the contributions of understudied nineteenth century works on language that women wrote even as they were excluded from academic opportunities
