European Security In The 1990s Deterrence And Defense After The Inf Treaty:

European Security in the 1990s W. Laqueur, L. Sloss, 2013-11-11 Rarely if ever have the political economic and military foundations of the Western Alliance been in such a state of flux Walter Laqueur and Leon Sloss therefore deserve credit not just for the quality of the analysis in this superb book but also for the timeliness of its appearance As Laqueur says in his chapter Touring the Western European Defense Horizon if the likely development of European defense policies is not particularly reassuring at least it gives no grounds for despair The list of problems we face is a daunting one First there is the spiralling cost of defense expenditures particularly in the absence of significant NATO or inter European cooperation This is particularly serious in light of the reluctance to increase or even maintain current expenditures in the midst of Mikhail Gorbachev's peace offensive and the extraordinary changes in Eastern Europe both of which have had a dramatic impact on Western public opinion There is also a problem in the perceived relative economic decline of the United States vis a vis Western Europe and Japan which only exacerbates calls to reduce the number of American troops in Europe Other dangers to the political cohesion and military credibility of the alliance include demographic trends that threaten current manpower levels transatlantic acrimony over the burden sharing issue and political pressures particularly in West Germany toward denuclearization and even neutralism

The Defense Policies of Nations Douglas J. Murray, Paul R. Viotti, 1994 Now in its third edition The Defense Policies of Nations has been thoroughly updated to take into account the dramatic developments of recent years the dissolution of the Soviet Union the resurgence of East Asian powers the emergence of newly independent nations in Eastern Europe the continuing instability of the Middle East and the growing importance of third world nations in global security matters For those dealing with national defense issues on a daily basis or even for those interested in the subject because of its current relevance The Defense Policy of Nations is must reading Gen Theodore J Conway Military Review American Academy of Political and Social Science

Challenges to American National Security in the 1990s M. Nacht, A. Nichols, G.H. Quester, J.J. Weltman, 2012-12-06 The decade of the 1990s offers a chance to build a new and better international order What policy choices will this decade pose for the United States This wide ranging volume of essays imaginatively addresses these crucial issues The peaceful revolutions of 1989 1990 in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe have swept away the foundations of the Cold War The Eastern European nations are free Europe is no longer divided Germany is united The Soviet threat to Western Europe is ending with the collapse of the Warsaw Pact and the withdrawals and asymmetrical cuts of Soviet forces And U S Soviet rivalry in the Third World is giving way to cooperation in handling conflicts as in Iraq and elsewhere Much of course remains uncertain and unsettled What sort of Soviet Union will emerge from the ongoing turmoil with what political and economic system and what state structure How far and how soon will the Eastern European states succeed in developing pluralist democracies and market economies Are the changes irreversible Certainly there will be turmoil backsliding and failures but a return to the Cold War hardly seems likely

U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency [i.e. 1989] 1990 Annual Report United States. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, 1991 Nuclear Weapons in the Changing World Patrick J. Garrity, Steven A.

Maaranen, 2012-12-06 Lawrence Freedman One of the major bonuses of the collapse of communism in Europe is that it may never again be necessary to enter into a sterile debate about whether it is better to be red or dead. This appeared as the ultimate question in the great nuclear debate of the early 1980s. When put so starkly, the answer appeared obvious: better to live and struggle in a totalitarian system than to destroy totalitarian and democratic systems alike. There were a number of points to be made against this. Communist regimes had demonstrated the possibility of being both red and dead, while the West had managed successfully to avoid the choice. If we allowed nuclear disarmament to become an overriding priority, this might encourage excessive respect for Soviet interests and a desire to avoid any sort of provocation to Moscow, a point not lost on those in Eastern Europe who were then struggling against repression and could not see why disarmament should be given a higher priority than freedom. Now that the old communist states have liberated themselves and the West no longer risks conspiring in their enslavement, there is a correspondingly reduced danger of mass death. As a result, and with so much else of immediate relevance, Lawrence Freedman, Department of War Studies, King's College University of London, London WC2R 2LS, England.

Nuclear Weapons in the Changing World: Perspectives from Europe, Asia, and North America Special Bibliography Series United States Air Force Academy. Library, 1991 Special Bibliography Series, 1957

Not-So-Special Relationship Luca Ratti, 2017-03-08 Examines how German reunification and the end of the Quadripartite Agreement in 1990 impacted the Anglo-American special relationship. Luca Ratti offers new insights into the role of the Anglo-American special relationship in German reunification and examines the impact that Germany's reunification had on Anglo-American and transatlantic relations. Germany's unification in October 1990 was one of the most momentous events in modern European history and world politics since the end of World War II. German unity ended the Cold War in Europe, accelerated the collapse of communist regimes across Eastern Europe, and the disintegration of the USSR in 1991. It also triggered NATO's transformation at the London and Rome summits of the Alliance and deepened Europe's political and economic integration with the signing of the Treaty of Maastricht in 1992. Key Features: Analyses and compares attitudes reactions and developments in the US and Britain

Considers their interface with the views and initiatives of the West German government
Offers new insight into an issue central to Anglo American and transatlantic relations
Includes interview with key decision makers involved in the negotiations in 1989/90 such as John Major James Baker III Helmut Kohl and Hans Dietrich Genscher

Beyond 1995 R.E. Pendley, J.F. Pilat, 2012-12-06

There is almost universal support for the view that the world would be an even more dangerous place if there were to be more nuclear weapon states There would be more fingers on more triggers and probably a greater risk that a trigger might be pulled with incalculable consequences It is easy to see therefore that there is a collective interest in avoiding the spread of nuclear weapons to further countries Nations do not however normally undertake or refrain from actions because of such a collective interest they do so because of their individual interests This is especially true in the field of national security A nation perceiving that it has a real interest in developing nuclear weapons is not very likely to refrain from doing so merely because it is told such development would be bad for the world community If the global interest in avoiding the spread of nuclear weapons to more countries is to succeed conditions that make it in the interest of each individual nation to renounce nuclear weapons need to be created or maintained Fortunately conditions have prevailed in which the vast majority of nations have seen an advantage in making legally binding nonproliferation commitments An important rationale for many of these countries has been that these commitments would facilitate the transfer of desired civil nuclear technology
