European Communities,1999      European Union Office for Official Publications of the European Communities,Commission of the European Communities,1992      The Political Economy of Managed Migration Georg Menz,2010-12-16 European governments have re discovered labour migration but are eager to be perceived as controlling unsolicited forms of migration especially through asylum and family reunion The emerging paradigm of managed migration combines the construction of more permissive channels for desirable and actively recruited labour migrants with ever more restrictive approaches towards asylum seekers Non state actors especially employer organizations trade unions and humanitarian non governmental organisations attempt to shape regulatory measures but their success varies depending on organizational characteristics Labour market interest associations lobbying strategies regarding quantities and skill profile of labour migrants will be influenced by the respective system of political economy they are embedded in Trade unions are generally supportive of well managed labour recruitment strategies But migration policy making also proceeds at the European Union EU level While national actors seek to upload their national model as a blueprint for future EU policy to avoid costly adaptation top down Europeanization is re casting national regulation in important ways notwithstanding highly divergent national regulatory philosophies Based on field work in and analysis of primary documents from six European countries France Italy United Kingdom Ireland Germany and Poland this book makes an important contribution to the study of a rapidly Europeanized policy domain Combining insights from the literature on comparative political economy Europeanization and migration studies the book makes important contributions to all three while demonstrating how migration policy can be fruitfully studied by employing tools from mainstream political science rather than treating it as a distinct subfield      Racism, Nationalism and Citizenship Nicola Piper,2018-08-17 First published in 1998 this book is about the consequences of the permanent settlement of former labour migrants in contemporary Germany and Britain and the extent to which these new minorities are regarded as citizens in both societies as well as citizens of the European Union It is argued that a socio historical link between processes of racialization and nationalism lead to an exclusionary concept of citizenship in both countries This link is concretized by the intermingling of nationality and citizenship as reflected in law and or in the perception by civil society Thus the concept of citizenship can only function as a mechanism for inclusion of ethnic minorities if de linked from nationality i e ethnic descent In addition recent supra and sub national development on the EU level lead to the suggestion of a three layered conception of citizenship i e local national European and it is argued that the local level is probably the most effective to resist the power of racism and nationalism      Max Planck Yearbook of United Nations Law Max Planck,1998-10-23 Court      Understanding European Integration R.
