

European Environment Agency

1994-2001

The European Environment Agency (EEA) was established in 1990 to provide independent scientific information and data to support the development and implementation of EU environmental policy. The EEA's primary role is to monitor and assess the state of the environment in Europe, and to provide the public with accessible information on environmental issues.

The EEA's work is carried out through a network of offices across Europe, and it collaborates with other international organizations, including the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and the World Health Organization (WHO). The EEA's activities are funded by the European Commission and the governments of the member states.
