of St Andrews and translator of many books from Russian including most recently Isaac Babel's Red Cavalry 2014 Sydney Goodsir Smith, Poet, 2020-03-09 Sydney Goodsir Smith's Poet Essays on His Life and Work offers the first substantial work to assess his life and writings since his premature death in 1975. Considered a major figure in the second wave of Hugh MacDiarmid's Scottish Literary Renaissance, Smith's unique body of work has largely fallen from critical discussion of post-war Scottish literature. This book remedies this by showing how his work may have fallen out of favour and then by reappraising his distinctive and varied achievements in poetry, drama, art and art criticism, the novel and translations. Early career and established academics explore the many strands of his work as the best way of giving this multifaceted literary figure renewed attention. The Oxford Guide to Literature in English Translation Peter France, 2000 This guide highlights the place of translation in our culture, encouraging awareness of the process of translating and the choices involved, making the translator more visible. Concentrating on major writers and works, it covers translations out of many languages from Greek to Hungarian, Korean to Turkish. For some works, e.g. Virgil's Aeneid, which have been much translated, the discussion is historical and critical, showing how translation has evolved over the centuries and bringing out the differences between versions. Elsewhere, with less familiar literatures, the Guide examines the extent to which translation has done justice to the range of work available. Text Types and the History of English Manfred Görlach, 2008-08-22 The history of modern European languages has been largely determined by the range of functions they have acquired, particularly after 1500. This development necessitated a notable expansion of their syntax and lexis but is most characteristically reflected in the conventionalization of text types. Starting from the German concept of Textsorte as developed from the 1960s onwards, the present account is a first comprehensive attempt at charting the field for the history and present-day situation of the English language. In text types, a designation is linked with a more or less stable form which guides the writer's production as well as the reader's expectation, permitting one to recognize straightforward uses as well as deliberate misuses. Some two thousand of such designations are here listed with minimal definitions and dates for first occurrences. The discussion then concentrates on selected types which are seen as especially illustrative for English: book dedications, cooking recipes, advertisements, church hymns, lexical entries and jokes. Their functions and development over time are treated in correlation with their specific linguistic characteristics and adaptations to different period styles and social changes in the readership. The functional range of text types in traditions outside England and the consequences of the export of English categories are exemplified by the history of Scots, Scottish English and of English in India. The arguments are accompanied by a lavish supply of textual excerpts and more than fifty pages of facsimiles which are especially relevant for insights derived from typographical features. A full bibliography and indices are provided at the end. The book will prove useful for decisions on the constitution of representative text corpora and stimulate research into a greater number of individual text types as well as contrastive analyses at least among European languages. Frae Ither Tongues Bill Findlay, 2004 This collection of essays represents the first extended analysis of the nature and practice of modern translation into Scots. It comprises essays of two complementary kinds: reflections by translators on their practice in a given work and critical analyses of the use of Scots in representative translations. The twelve essays cover poetry, fiction, drama, and folk ballads and translations from Greek, Latin, Chinese, Italian, French, Russian, Danish, Romanesco, and Quebecois. Georges Rodenbach Philip Mosley, 1996. His pervasive interest in Bruges suffuses his work with the quiet spiritual atmosphere of the dead city, a theme frequently evoked by writers of the fin de siècle.

Comparative Criticism: Volume 12, Representations of the Self E. S. Shaffer, 1990-09-27. This volume explores a theme that has become central in our time as the death of God is widely seen to be succeeded by the death of Man. Our contributors set forth its urgency in a variety of contexts. Among these Peter Stern gives the paradigmatic history of the bereft, damaged, and repudiated self in German philosophy and literature from Kleist to Ernst Jilnger. In Not I Michael Edwards pursues the theological and psychological consequences of a self without substance. Peter France supplies a witty account of the marriage of self and commerce more at home in the eighteenth century tradition of British empiricism and the challenge of Rousseau's refusal of the terms of commerce. Raman Selden explores views of the self from the Romantics to the poststructuralists. Roger Cardinal probes the secret diary as the genre, a contradiction in terms. Stephen Bann explores the representations of Narcissus in recent psychoanalytic theory. Other contributors include Pierre Dupuy, David James, Julie Scott Meisami, Gregory Blue, Mark Ogden, and A. D. Nuttall.
