Suburban Landscapes Paul H. Mattingly, 2003-04-01 Certificate of Commendation from the American Association for State and Local History Most Americans today live in the suburbs Yet suburban voices remain largely unheard in sociological and cultural studies of these same communities In Suburban Landscapes Culture and Politics in a New York Metropolitan Community Paul Mattingly provides a new model for understanding suburban development through his narrative history of Leonia New Jersey an early commuter suburb of New York City Although Leonia is a relatively small suburb a study of this kind has national significance because most of America's suburbs began as rural communities with histories that predated the arrival of commuters and real estate developers Examining the dynamics of community cultural formation Mattingly contests the prevailing urban and suburban dichotomy In doing so he offers a respite from journalistic clichés and scholarly bias about the American suburb providing instead an insightful nuanced look at the integrative history of a region Mattingly examines Leonia's politics and culture through three eras of growth and change 1859-94 1894-1920 and 1920-60 A major part of Leonia's history Mattingly reveals was its role as an attractive community for artists and writers many contributors to national magazines who created a suburban aesthetic The work done by generations of Leonia's artists provides an important vantage and a wonderful set of tools for exploring evolving notions of suburban culture and landscape which have broad implications and applications Oral histories census records and the extensive work of Leonia s many artists and writers come together to trace not only the community s socially diverse history but to show how residents viewed the growth and transformation of Leonia as well Material Culture in America Helen Sheumaker, Shirley Wajda, 2007-11-07

McNamara, 2004 During the formative years of the American republic lawyers and architects both eager to secure public affirmation of their professional status worked together to create specialized purpose built courthouses to replace the informal judicial settings in which trials took place during the colonial era In From Tavern to Courthouse Martha J McNamara addresses this fundamental redefinition of civic space in Massachusetts Professional collaboration she argues benefitted both lawyers and architects as it reinforced their desire to be perceived as trained specialists solely concerned with promoting the public good These courthouses now reserved exclusively for legal proceedings and occupying specialized locations in the town plans represented a new vision for the design organization and function of civic space McNamara shows how courthouse spaces were refined to reflect the increasingly professionalized judicial system and particularly to accommodate the rapidly growing participation of lawyers in legal proceedings In following this evolution of judicial space from taverns and town houses to monumental courthouse complexes she discusses the construction of Boston s first civic building the 1658 Town House and its significance for colonial law and commerce the rise of professionally trained lawyers through the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and changes in judicial rituals at the turn of the century and development of specialized judicial landscapes A case study of three courthouses built in Essex County between 1785 and 1805 delineates these changes as they unfold in one county over a thirty year period Concise and clearly written From Tavern to Courthouse reveals the processes by which architects and lawyers crafted new judicial spaces to provide a specialized exclusive venue in which lawyers could articulate their professional status
