Redding,2024-04-15 In this book the late Richard Redding synthesizes his decades long work on the ancient agricultural economy of Egypt Drawing on a diverse range of data including zooarchaeology ancient texts and iconographic sources he explores the role of cattle sheep goats and pigs in the economic infrastructure of ancient mainly Pharaonic Egypt and the complexities of decision making processes that shaped the use and management of these vital livestock resources The book integrates zooarchaeological and historical data with information on unimproved breeds of cattle sheep goats and pigs from Egypt and the broader Middle East as well as considers texts and tomb paintings Redding argues that understanding the interplay between economic forces environmental factors and herders knowledge of animal characteristics is crucial for unraveling the dynamic nature of decision making The author explores herd growth rates meat yields caloric and nutritional benefits and optimal herd structures By employing that data and ecological models including the annual Nile floods he provides insights into the adaptive strategies employed by ancient Egyptian herders In this way Redding examines the economic rationale behind ancient Egyptian herding communities His models of Pharaonic herding strategies generate expectations tested using zooarchaeological evidence Redding long advocated the modeling approach he demonstrates here understanding zooarchaeological data through a lens of animal biology and environmental context This work should therefore spark wide interest among archaeologists working in disparate regions
