Competitive Assessment of the U.S. Flexible Manufacturing Systems Industry, 1985 International Competitiveness in Latin America and East Asia Klaus Esser, Wolfgang Hillebrand, Dirk Messner, Jörg Meyer-Stamer, 2012-10-12 First published in 1993 Latin America is undergoing a process of profound economic and social change The industrial import substitution that continued for several decades was quantitatively successful in terms of industrialization but like inward oriented industrialization in the socialist countries failed to raise the economies of the region to international productivity levels The attempt at catch up industrialization outside the reference frame of the world market led to economic stagnation social crises serious environmental degradation and the obstruction of social development The following papers included in this book show that the development of competitive advantages is initially determined by the new macro policy and by modernization at enterprise level The Oxford Handbook of Work and Organization Stephen Ackroyd, 2006 Aims to bring together present and discuss what is known about work and organizations and their connection to broader economic change in Europe and America This volume contains a range of theoretically informed essays which give comprehensive coverage of changes in work occupations and organizations Flexible Automation in Developing Countries Ludovico Alcorta, 2003-09-02 This book examines the extent of and motives for the diffusion of flexible automation FA at global level and then turns to the local and firm level bringing together in depth studies of sixty two firms in Brazil India Mexico Thailand Turkey and Venezuela Research focuses on the impact of computer numerically controlled machine tools on scale and scope by exploring changes in lot sizes and product variety product scale and scope total plant output plant scale and total firm output firm scale Barriers to setting up FA based operations are discussed as are factors which may affect a decision to locate in a developing country The contributed studies reveal a relatively slow diffusion of FA in developing countries and it is demonstrated that while FA possibly increases scope it also requires that plant output be increased in order to maintain efficiency Alcorta concludes that the location in developing countries will probably only be viable for large domestic firms multinationals seeking to relocate simple but labour intensive assembly processes and firms in countries with significant domestic markets This work is unique in addressing the scale and scope issues in developing countries and in the wealth of information regarding machine tools which it provides The data provided in the appendix includes official United Nations data previously unpublished This will be of use for all research into trends in the use of machine tools     Flexible Automation and Integrated Manufacturing 1993 M Ahmad,William G. The Politics of Labor in a Global Age Christopher Candland,Rudra Sil,2001-09-20 The Politics of Labor in a Global Age is one of the first works to analyse and compare recent shifts in patterns of industrial relations across late industrializing and post socialist economies The volume features original and timely essays on labor relations at national local and workplace levels as economic and political actors cope with the similar challenges associated with economic adjustment measures and the impact of globalization The authors reveal that while globalization has threatened the position of organized labor and prompted business and state elites to accommodate greater labor market flexibility the legacies of past institutions remain evident in distinctive trends in labor politics within and across late industrializing and post socialist settings The comparisons suggest that globalization is best understood not as a source of convergence but as a set of common pressures that are mediated by specific historical inheritances that spur varied responses on the part of industrial relations actors and that facilitate quite diverse institutional outcomes

Technology and the Future of Work Paul S. Adler,1992 This book brings together a set of essays exploring the implications of new technologies in the workplace The common premise of the contributions is that the effective implementation of automation in manufacturing and engineering operations will typically require a workforce with a higher skill profile Examining the experience of countries in Europe Australia Asia and the U S the book analyzes four themes the new competencies required for effective implementation of new technologies how firms can develop these new competencies the implications of these changes for industrial relations and how firms can weave together business strategy technology strategy and personnel strategy to build competitive advantage with greater rather than lesser skills This argument contradicts the conventional assumption that automation will not only reduce the number of workers required to produce a given product but also require less skilled workers to do so

Competitive Position of the U.S. Gear Industry in U.S. and Global Markets ,1990 Human Competence and Business Development Peter Docherty,Barry Nyhan,2012-12-06 European competitiveness in a global perspective is a major issue on the agenda of the European Union and European industry The question of competitiveness is often related to continual technological change and changing work structures to create more flexible and adaptive work places But these changes are in themselves insufficient to meet the demands of a turbulent business environment if they are not brought about in close relationship with and anchored to the development of the human resource potential Technological innovation and modern post Tayloristic work structures place new demands on workers Workers abilities and competencies must be raised in virtually every sphere in what are termed the new key core competencies related to knowledge and cognitive skills social skills general and work related personality characteristics together with a high level of technological ability At the same time to make optimal use of the human potential the way in which work is organised and accordingly the way in which people are managed must allow workers to develop and use the required competencies An integrated Human Resource Development approach is needed in which workers abilities and competencies take a central place European competitiveness from this perspective implies a strategic choice by European companies and policy makers to invest in people and their potential abilities
