lack thereof They suggest where characters have been and where they might be headed as well as whether or not they are aware of their fate At the Mercy of Their Clothes explores the agency of fashion in modern literature its reflection of new relations between people and things and its embodiment of a rapidly changing society confronted by war and cultural and economic upheaval In some cases people need garments to realize themselves In other cases the clothes control the person who wears them Celia Marshik's study combines close readings of modernist and middlebrow works a history of Britain in the early twentieth century and the insights of thing theory She focuses on four distinct categories of modern clothing the evening gown the mackintosh the fancy dress costume and secondhand attire In their use of these clothes we see authors negotiate shifting gender roles weigh the value of individuality during national conflict work through mortality and depict changing class structures Marshik's dynamic comparisons put Ulysses in conversation with Rebecca Punch cartoons articles in Vogue and letters from consumers illuminating opinions about specific garments and a widespread anxiety that people were no more than what they wore Throughout her readings Marshik emphasizes the persistent animation of clothing and objectification of individuals in early twentieth century literature and society She argues that while artists and intellectuals celebrated the ability of modern individuals to remake themselves a range of literary works and popular publications points to a lingering anxiety about how political social and economic conditions continued to constrain the individual

Stefan Szczelkun ,2025-06-07 A collection of Wikipedia articles edited reformatted and with additions In chronological order References and sections on non literary activity are sometimes omitted hopefully not to the point of misrepresenting the author which might include feminist or political activism To my surprise the biographical material on Wikipedia was sometimes mesmerising although it was uneven Where there were gaps I have tried to fill them from other sources Refer back to the wikipedia articles for more context and references in some cases and if you have a verified source of information please update the Wikipedia article Wikipedia is published under a creative commons licence So this compilation also carries a creative commons licence Introduction Looking through Sarah Richardson s Writing on the Line 1996 I was struck by how many of the working class women writers were from North America and how many more were poets Howard Slater had made a list of British working class male novelists and I selected British woman writers from Writing on the Line and found that most of them now have Wikipedia pages I first made a list of links Wanting to take this further I first looked to focus on novels and short story writers but this category started to break up as many writers wrote in many idioms producing fact fiction poetry plays screenwriting and journalism I decided on an arbitrary cut off point of writers born before 1962 When I first made the list I was thinking how few working class women novelists had been published in this period But then the lists of books by each author started to stack up and there s plenty to read and much that I missed even really hearing about Of course it focuses on the most successful others who produced a community published autobiography or self published novel did not get a Wikipedia page and they should really be included every life counts Others only published an autobiography perhaps in the last years of life but were extraordinary writers and people We could also discuss the genre snobbery in literary circles that puts crime young peoples literature romantic and fantasy fiction and perhaps historical based narratives in a lower category than the novel
