The only thing that made Lila different from the other kids in the town was that she could see and talk to the fairies that lived in the trees, flowers, and streams of the forest. From the moment Lila was born, everyone who met her was enchanted by her beautiful aura. Her parents were humble and worked hard. They were amazed by their daughter's amazing skills because she seemed to be having passionate talks with friends who weren't there at the beginning. As Lila got older, her friendship with the fairies grew stronger. They helped her learn the secrets of the forest. After being drawn to her kind heart and willingness to help, the fairies showed her the delicate beauty of their land where fireflies danced in patterns and flowers sang in the wind. At the times she met the fairies,

Lila was speechless with amazement She sat under a big oak tree and listened to stories about old magic and immortal knowledge She eagerly took in what they had to teach her She became more connected to the forest and learned more about how complicated it was Lila found a hidden area in the middle of the forest one sunny morning It was centered around a tall old tree that was full of bright flowers The fairies had given hints about what it meant and when Lila got close she touched one of the bright petals and felt a warm tingling feeling As the fairies appeared their wings flashing with bright light she learned what her fate was as the guardian of the old tree Even though she was tired Lila got to work All of the forest s species big and small found a new balance while she watched over it There was music in the woods and both predators and prey lived together More people came to the forest in search of magic as word spread about Lila s amazing link Lila welcomed them warmly and taught them about compassion and how everything is connected She also told them about the magic of the forest Because of Lila s unwavering love and the fairies direction the forest went from being a dangerous place to stay alive to a safe place where all living things could thrive Her legacy lives on telling people of the power of love wonder and the beautiful world just beyond the everyday She also encourages future generations to see the magic in the everyday This is how the story starts A little girl named Lila lived in a cute house that was tucked away in the middle of a beautiful forest Lila was different from the other kids in her town Being able to see and talk to the fairies that lived in the woods made her stand out from her friends and make her unique From the moment Lila was born it was clear that she was different in some way Most men wouldn t guess that her curious eyes were hiding something strange from them Her parents who were simple and hardworking were amazed by how smart and talented their daughter was They were amazed as she laughed and talked with her friends who weren t there As Lila got bigger her friendship with the fairies grew stronger She spent her days walking around the magical forest and listening to her ghost friends sweet whispers The fairies were drawn to Lila s pure and loving heart and they then showed her the secret treasures of their world They showed her how beautiful their world was with fireflies whirling in perfect time with each other and flowers singing symphonies to the wind All the time Lila was amazed and thrilled when she met fairies She was often seen curled up under the big oak trees listening carefully as the fairies told stories of old fashioned wisdom and beauty They told her everything she needed to know about the forest from the calming music that could calm even the most irritated spirits to the healing powers of certain plants Lila devoured their lessons with a fierce hunger for knowledge Her never ending curiosity drove her to seek a deeper understanding Lila was going deeper into the forest one sunny morning when she came across a faraway glen that was lit up with soft golden light In the middle of it all was a tall old tree whose branches were covered with sparkling flowers that gave off a lovely glow The fairies had talked about this tree in low polite tones and Lila knew what they were talking about Lila went deeper into the bush and the path in front of her seemed to be full of hope In front of them in the old valley tall trees whispered stories as their branches crossed each other like guards She felt like her heart was racing as each step brought her closer to the magic

that had drawn her there since she was a kid The secret glen opened up in front of her like a scene from a dream bathed in the soft warm light of the sun In the middle of this holy place a beautiful tree with ethereal flowers on its old branches stood The fairies had talked about this tree in low polite tones and when Lila looked at it she couldn't breathe
