Rights, Groups, and Self-Invention Eric J. Mitnick, 2018-01-18 Group differentiated rights or rights that attach on the basis of membership in a particular social or cultural group are an increasingly common and controversial aspect of modern pluralistic legal systems Eric Mitnick offers the first comprehensive treatment of this important form of right The book describes and critically assesses the group differentiated form of right from within analytical constitutive and liberal theory It further examines the extent to which group differentiated rights constitute aspects of human identity and it asks whether this should be a cause for concern from the perspective of liberal theory The more detailed normative work advanced in the book contextually applies the constitutive understanding of rights and the principles of liberal membership to particular examples of group differentiated citizenship Such examples range from ascriptive statuses such as slavery and alienage to more affirmative classifications such as those apparent in the contexts of civil unions and affirmative action finally to the claims of religious and other cultural groups for official recognition and accommodation of group based beliefs and practices
