The Selected Essays of T. Harry Williams T. Harry Williams, 1999-03-01 This first collection of the essays of the late T. Harry Williams brings together some of the best shorter works of a man who was by any standard one of the finest historians of our time. Spanning the range of Williams' interests, this volume contains essays on the Civil War, Reconstruction, the era of the world wars, military affairs, the craft of the historian, and the careers of Abraham Lincoln, Huey P. Long, and Lyndon B. Johnson. Williams' reputation rests on such large-scale works as Lincoln and His Generals and the Pulitzer Prize-winning biography Huey P. Long. Exhaustively researched, studies monumental in their scope and ambition, providing Williams with the chance to let his gaze probe beyond the fixed borders of such works, the essay was a flexible medium in which he could freely pursue some of the ideas that grew out of his daily regimen of writing and reading. He used the essay to examine large themes that spanned many areas of his interests as well as specific incidents in the course of American history to reach both a popular audience and his fellow historians, to test ideas for books in the planning stage, and to assess the works of his colleagues. Among the essays brought together in this volume are That Strange Sad War in which Williams examines the Civil War as the first truly and tragically modern war, Abraham Lincoln: Pragmatic Democrat which sees Lincoln as the supreme example in our history of the union of principle and pragmatism in politics, and The Louisiana Unification Movement of 1873 which traces the short history of an ambitious attempt to bring about racial unity in Reconstruction Louisiana. In Interlude 1918-1939, an essay published here for the first time, Williams analyzes the weakened state of American military preparedness before Franklin Roosevelt came into office and turned his attention to the growing threat of Hitler's Germany. In The Macs and the Ikes: America's Two Military Traditions, Williams contrasts the opposing types of military leaders in American history: those generals in the mold of Dwight Eisenhower who follow orders and submit to the power of the president and Congress, and the more fractious generals such as Douglas MacArthur who view the military as an aristocracy of courage and genius and bridle at the reigns of civilian authority. Huey P. Long and Southern Radicalism traces the common political roots of two men Williams considered among the most successful power artists of the century. And in Lyndon B. Johnson and the Art of Biography, Williams discusses his own plans to write a biography of Johnson and speaks of his unapologetic belief in a great man theory of history.

Fulcrum of power : essays on the United States Air Force and national security, 2003

IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY THE IMPACT OF FLIGHT REACHED INTO EVERY CORNER OF American society. However, nowhere has its impact been more dramatic than in the realm of military affairs. Over the past one hundred years, the evolution of military aviation technology has altered the way Americans have looked at national security. The development of military aviation has had an enormous impact upon the battlefield, which in turn has transformed international politics and the crafting of national security policy. The question of how best to protect the United States against external military threats has come to involve the projection of military power abroad. With the passage of time and accelerated advancement of military aviation technology the organization and development of air forces have assumed greater urgency and significance In 1934 James H Jimmy Doolittle noted that the future security of our nation is dependent upon an adequate air force AND this will become increasingly important as the science of aviation advances I Collected Essays on Political Economy and Wartime Civil Liberties, 2002-2008 Peter McMillan, 2019-10-19 A collection of 64 essays written between 2002 2008 primarily about economics theory versus actually existing capitalism through various topics including economic growth business cycles globalization and monopoly power and political science theory versus actually existing democracy through various topics including constitutional government emergency powers and civil liberties The geographic focus is the English speaking nations of the Northern Hemisphere primarily the U S A significant reason for setting this time frame is that it corresponds to a period when the author was experiencing his own darkness at noon
