Further Investigation Of The Stoneybaynard Main House Hilton Head Island Beaufort County South Carolina:

Further Investigation of the Stoney/Baynard Main House, Hilton Head Island, Beaufort County, South Carolina, 1996 The results of a study on an area of Hilton Head Island known locally as The Ruins The site consists of the massive tabby ruins of a main plantation house and three additional structures a domestic slave house a kitchen and a structure thought to have been thrown together by Union forces which occupied the island during the Civil War Introduction p 1 Further Investigations of the Stoney/Baynard Main House, Hilton Head Island, Beaufort County, South Carolina Michael Trinkley, 1996 An Investigation of the St. Queuntens Plantation Main House, Beaufort County, South Carolina Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, 1998 Lost Plantations of the South Marc R. Matrana, 2014-07-18 The great majority of the South's plantation homes have been destroyed over time and many have long been forgotten In Lost Plantations of the South Marc R Matrana weaves together photographs diaries and letters architectural renderings and other rare documents to tell the story of sixty of these vanquished estates and the people who once called them home From plantations that were destroyed by natural disaster such as Alabama's Forks of Cypress to those that were intentionally demolished such as Seven Oaks in Louisiana and Mount Brilliant in Kentucky Matrana resurrects these lost mansions Including plantations throughout the South as well as border states Matrana carefully tracks the histories of each from the earliest days of construction to the often contentious struggles to preserve these irreplaceable historic treasures Lost Plantations of the South explores the root causes of demise and provides understanding and insight on how lessons learned in these sad losses can help prevent future preservation crises Capturing the voices of masters and mistresses alongside those of slaves and featuring more than one hundred elegant archival illustrations this book explores the powerful and complex histories of these cardinal homes across the South The Shell Builders Colin Brooker, 2020-08-25 Beaufort South Carolina is well known for its historical architecture but perhaps none is quite as remarkable as those edifices formed by tabby sometimes called coastal concrete comprising a mixture of lime sand water and oyster shells Tabby itself has a storied history stretching back to Iberian Caribbean Spanish American and even African roots brought to the United States by adventurers merchants military engineers planters and the enslaved Tabby has been preserved most abundantly in the Beaufort area and its outlying islands and along the Sea Islands all the way to Florida as well with Fort Frederick in 1734 having the earliest example of a diverse group of structures which included town houses seawalls planters homes barns agricultural buildings and slave quarters Tabby's insulating properties are excellent protection from long hot humid and sometimes deadly summers and on the islands particularly wealthy plantation owners built grand houses for themselves and improved dwellings for enslaved workers that after two hundred plus years still stand today An extraordinarily hardy material tabby has a history akin to some of the world's oldest building techniques and is referred to as rammed earth as well as tapia in Spanish pis de terre in French and hangtu in Chinese The form that tabby construction took along the Sea Islands however was born of necessity Here stone and brick were rare and expensive but the oyster shells that were used as the source for the tabby's lime base were plentiful. Today these bits of shell often visible in the walls and forms constructed long ago give tabby its unique and iconic appearance. Colin Brooker, architect and expert on historic restoration, has not only made an exhaustive foray into local tabby architecture and heritage, he also has made a multinational tour as well in search of tabby origins, evolution and diffusion from the Bahamas to Morocco to Andalusia, which can be traced back as far as the tenth century. Brooker has spent more than thirty years investigating the origins of tabby, its chemistry, its engineering, and its limitations. The Shell Builders lays out a sweeping in depth and fascinating investigative journey at once archaeological, sociological, and historical into the ways prior inhabitants used and shaped their environment in order to house and protect themselves, leaving behind an architectural legacy that is both mysterious and beautiful. Lawrence S. Rowland, a distinguished professor emeritus of history at the University of South Carolina Beaufort and past president of the South Carolina Historical Society, provides a foreword.

Archaeological Testing at the Stoney/Baynard Plantation, Hilton Head Island, Beaufort County, South Carolina Natalie Adams, Michael Trinkley, 1991      Reinterpreting a "silent" History Leslie Brett Kirchler, 2005 Every year millions of tourists visit historic sites throughout the world. In the American South, these sites encompass diverse cultural landscapes such as plantations. In many cases, visitors do not receive representative pictures of early lives. Rather, they encounter sanitized versions of the past that are acceptable to conventional views of slavery and that avoid conflict and expressions of deep emotion. Therefore, one of the primary goals of this research is to create a model for interpretative programs targeting plantation sites. Through an analysis of current programs and archival information, this model addresses the expressions of race, social class, and identity in the cultural landscape. This research on James Madison's Montpelier, George Washington's Mount Vernon, and Thomas Jefferson's Monticello and Poplar Forest attempts to remedy these shortcomings while providing a model to be used for the interpretative programming at plantations throughout the South. Abstract page xix      "With Credit and Honour" Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, 1996 The study of the John Whitesides Plantation site 38CH1471, a late eighteenth-century site south of Rifle Range Road near the Isle of Palms connector      In the Shadow of the Big House Natalie Adams, Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, 1994      The Plantation Landscape Rachel Campo, Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, 1998      Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed Bowker, Staff, Staff Bowker, Ed, 2004      South Carolina Historical Magazine, 1997      Roupeulmond Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, 1999      Broom Hall Plantation Michael Trinkley, Debi Hacker, Natalie Adams, 1995      The Journal of the Armed Forces, 1863      Legal Intelligencer, 1863      Coffin Point Baynard Woods, 2011-03 Ed McTeer was the sheriff of island-bound Beaufort County, South Carolina, for 36 years. The Boy Sheriff was only twenty-two years old when he was appointed to finish his dead father's term. In 1926, he held the office until being voted out in 1962. During that time, McTeer dealt with syndicate rum runners, voodoo-inspired murderers, mannered Southern politicians, civil rights pioneers, and local root doctors, and in doing so, became more than an ordinary lawman. After an epic battle with the locally infamous Dr Buzzard McTeer a white man claimed he was the last remaining tie to the true African Witchcraft Using his own brand of voodoo to help govern the largely African American county McTeer never had to carry a gun during his long tenure After losing office he became a full time practitioner of the dark arts revered by the community at large Collector of curios historian poet raconteur and voodoo doctor McTeer was most assuredly a man of his times and an American original In Coffin Point Baynard Woods mixes stories and first hand accounts from McTeers friends enemies and family with archival research and critical readings of McTeers own books in order to conjure the charismatic sheriff and the bygone world he inhabited The enthralling sweeping story reads like an episodic novel shedding new light on the relationship between power and belief and demolishing the beleaguered stereotype of the rural Southern lawman
